

Nothing Works on Shortest Trip

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP) — The first hovercraft in the Canadian North set a record Thursday: the shortest trip by a hovercraft in northern Canada. What was supposed to be a 1,000-mile journey from this community down the Mackenzie River to the Arctic Ocean ended seconds after it began. The 10-ton machine, owned by Pacific Hovercraft of Vancouver, lurched off the launching pad and rose stiffly to its four-foot operating height Thursday. Then the gas turbine engine had to be shut down when electrical problems developed and the machine settled back onto the ground. The party chartered an aircraft to fly a new generator and regulator from Yellowknife, 140 miles northeast of here. Battery problems developed. One other snag hit the expedition. A special radio on board the hovercraft was useless because nobody knew how to tune it. "If we get stuck," quipped Robert Raymond of Victoria, "we'll all get together and yell."

Vote by Rhodesians Chops British Link

Means Queried For Moving Poisonous Gas

OTTAWA (CP) — A public outcry in the United States over the movement of poisonous gases prompted Prime Minister Trudeau to demand how such war materials are transported in Canada.

The precise answer given the prime minister by the defence department has not been disclosed.

However, department sources say that when toxic gases are shipped from one point to another in Canada, service rather than civilian transport is used.

NO FLIGHTS
The defence research board operates two chemical-biological laboratories, one at Shirley Bay near Ottawa and the other at Suffield, Alta.

Meanwhile, it has been denied officially here that the U.S. flies materials across Canadian territory for use at biological warfare test centres in Alaska and Greenland. David Lewis, deputy NDP leader, asked a series of questions on this subject Wednesday in the Commons. Lewis used the term "germs and other materials."

CONSULTATION
He was told by Treasury Board President C. M. Drury, acting as external affairs minister in the absence of Mitchell Sharp, that Canada-U.S. arrangements call for prior consultation before any such flights are made.

And, Drury added, "no permission for such flights has been sought."

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Prime Minister Ian Smith won a landslide referendum victory Friday as Rhodesia's white-dominated electorate overwhelmingly approved a new apartheid-style constitution and the declaration of a republic.

With nearly all the votes counted, the government had won a resounding 73 per cent yes vote for its white-supremacist constitution and an even more impressive 82 per cent "yes" for plans to declare a republic. "This is a very happy result," Smith said. "I wanted a good strong yes vote to send a firm, positive message out to the rest of the world."

OFFICIALS LEAVING?

The result seemed to ensure an imminent final parting between Rhodesia and Britain, from which Rhodesia declared its independence Nov. 11, 1965, after the white minority would not agree with Britain on plans for the political future of the Africans.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his ministers have said they consider the referendum and its proposals to be just as illegal as the declaration of independence and a British spokesman Friday night called the declaration of a republic invalid.

OFFICIALS LEAVING

Political sources in Salisbury speculated that Britain would react to the vote by withdrawing the head of its mission, Peter Carter, and retiring Gov.-Gen. Sir Humphrey Gibbs, the official symbol of the British crown.

Smith has scheduled a news conference for today, when he is expected to announce plans to put into effect the constitution, which provides that the African majority will never rule the country.

The population of the country is made up of 4,000,000 black Africans and 230,000 whites.

HEAVY VOTE

The voter turnout Friday appeared high. From the time the polls opened there were large lines at polling stations.

About 81,600 white and 5,500 privileged blacks were eligible to cast ballots and as returns appeared from urban and remote constituencies, every result was the same—a solid "yes."

The government, now that the constitution is approved, also proposes to divide all land in Rhodesia—half for the whites and half for the Africans.

But a leading council member chief, Kayisa Nwiniweni, in a statement said the majority of the 25 council members were totally opposed to the constitution.

Peking Parley 'Progressing'

OTTAWA (CP) — Talks between Canada and Communist China on the question of diplomatic recognition "have progressed on substantive issues in a deliberate and orderly way," External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Friday.

The minister, who earlier in the day returned from a Scandinavian tour—including a visit to Stockholm where the talks are being held—said the question of Nationalist China is "one of the most important being discussed."

'AMBIGUOUS'

But he refused to give any details during a news conference. If the talks are to be successful, he said, "they must be secret."

He said that until the present government took the initiative in seeking diplomatic recognition of the Peking regime, "Canada's position was a bit ambiguous so far as its one-China policy is concerned."

But he said it is clear now. Canada recognizes only one government of China, and is seeking to recognize the Communist regime as that government.

If the current negotiations don't succeed, he was asked, would Canada then continue to recognize the Nationalist Regime as the government of China?

Sharp said he is confident the talks will be successful. If they aren't, the situation would be considered at that time.

He made it clear that Canada would support the seating of Communist China in the United Nations should the current talks be successful. "Our attitude toward seating in the UN would have to be consistent."

Canada had no plans to recognize other Communist regimes which are not now recognized—such as North Korea and North Vietnam.

Spanish Bases Kept By U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring that "the era of foreign military bases has ended," Spain agreed Friday to a 15-month extension under which the United States maintains military bases in Spain. In exchange, Spain will receive $50,000,000 worth of military equipment from the United States and a $35,000,000 loan.

But Spanish disenchantment with the agreement was evident in a statement issued by Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella. He said the bases would become "exclusively Spanish" at the end of a phasing-out period.

DISSENT

Spain originally sought in long negotiations $1 billion from the United States in exchange for a five-year renewal of the agreement.

Sen. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, expressed his own disenchantment with the agreement.

"I feel bound to oppose it," he said. "I asked the secretary of state, both in person and in writing, to put the agreement in the form of a treaty or a convention which could be studied and voted on by the Senate. He refused to accept the suggestion," Fulbright said.

'ERA ENDED'

For his part, Castiella declared: "The people of Spain are aware of a world phenomenon which is indisputable: the era of foreign military bases has ended."

"Nations are every day less willing to harbor this sort of establishment and demand, instead, more rational systems of co-operation."

Bertrand Fights For Post

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, fighting to retain leadership of the ruling Union Nationale party, said Friday night he is prepared to propose a presidential system of government for Quebec by way of a referendum.

The premier made the pledge in his address to the party's leadership convention, which will elect a permanent successor tonight to the late premier Daniel Johnson.

Bertrand said: "We will establish the presidential system if the people want it. As far as I'm concerned I am ready to propose it in a referendum."

Premier Bertrand, elected interim party leader by the legislature caucus following Johnson's death last September, already has said referendum legislation will be brought before the national assembly this fall.

He did not explain how a presidential system would operate in the Canadian context.

Theme of his speech was "I speak to you tonight of the new Quebec." The presidential system was the key "new" element.

He said the new system would come "after having inherited over the years parliamentary systems and structures which were imported to suit the needs of various conquerors of times past."

***

"We are finally going to give ourselves a system designed to meet our needs, a system not only to ensure our survival or our existence but to ensure our development."

A big majority of the 55-man party caucus then rushed up to the podium to surround the premier.

Five of the 10 brass bands in the Coliseum blared away noisily.

Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal, last of the three candidates and a major challenger to Bertrand's leadership, received

Hippie Gets Bubonic Plague

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (Reuters) — A resident of a hippie community 20 miles north of here is suffering from bubonic plague, county health authorities confirmed Friday following medical tests.

Keith Pleasanton, 18, has been in Bernalillo County medical centre since Sunday. He is in fair condition.

The community of about 80 persons has been placed under an informal quarantine. Doctors and health personnel are in the area.

B.C. Tel Negotiations Going Around Clock

VANCOUVER (CP) — Union and management officials agreed Friday to begin round-the-clock negotiations to avert a strike at British Columbia Telephone Co.

The two sides agreed to resume bargaining after D. M. Carter, personnel director for B.C. Tel, sent a letter to the union Thursday which said it was "in the public interest that a contract be concluded."

***

About 6,000 plant, traffic and clerical employees of B.C. Tel have completed a strike vote but no result has been announced.

Meanwhile, another source of food supply in Vancouver closed

Friday. Locked out were 100 employees at the Malkin's division of Westfair Foods, a major wholesale firm.

E. R. O'Neill, general manager of Malkin's, said he did not believe the retail outlets served by the company would have to close. He said other wholesale firms would look after them "to the best of their ability."

Malkin's supplies independent stores not involved in a wages dispute that closed 103 Vancouver-area supermarkets May 24.

That dispute involves members of the meat cutters' union and the store clerks' union, both seeking shorter hours and higher wages. (See also Page 36.)

Fixed Income, Spiralling Costs

Pensions Underline Problem

By MARJORIE NICHOLS
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The plight of the pensioner points up the crisis facing thousands of Canadians who are trying to live on a fixed wage in the midst of spiralling inflation.

A group of old-age pensioners told Health Minister Munro last week that many older people across the country are being forced to eat dog food to make ends meet.

***

In the case of the civil service pensioner, it also points up the frustrations and confusion of trying to understand not only the federal government's political motives, but its illusory book-keeping methods as well.

According to government bookkeepers, civil servants now have a balance of almost three billion dollars in their superannuation, or pension account.

In theory there is enough money to give each of the country's 50,000 retired civil servants, widows and orphans a $2,000, lump-sum bonus out of the interest earned by the account last year alone.

In fact, however, the government does not have three billion dollars saved away in a bank account, and the outlook for even a modest pension increase in the near future is not bright.

Unlike most private enterprises, the government does not physically take its employees' contributions and invest them. It merely keeps a running tab of the amount paid, on paper, to the book-keeping account by employee and employer.

At present civil servants pay six and a half per cent of their salary into this account. This amount is matched, on paper, by the government, and the account, in theory, collects interest at the rate of four per cent per annum.

The account is, in other words, merely an exercise in bookkeeping, a meticulous record of paper transactions. Each year, the government still has to budget for the money needed to pay the civil servants their pensions.

Though the government last year paid out more than $84,000,000 in superannuation payments, the superannuation account grew by almost $300,000,000 through addition of interest and employee and employer contributions.

Most of the civil service pensioners who have been lobbying unsuccessfully for several years for a pay

Corporate Courtships Arranged Business Mergers Bloom in June

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP)

— The merger movement in the United States reached the wholesale stage Friday. Seventeen companies looking for mates completed hotel-room courtships with 53 prospective brides. Object, corporate matrimony.

***

There were 145 separate flirtations in three days, lasting two hours each. Probably one-third of them will result in further dates. Only a handful may end in weddings.

"We had more negotiations in one place at one time than have ever been held before, I believe," said Harlan J.

Brown, president of H. J. Brown International, Inc., Washington, D.C., merger-making firm that organized and planned the multiple matings.

"There may be only a half-dozen acquisitions finally closed. The ratio of negotiations to closings averages about 25 to 1."

***

But to Brown's surprise, four of the suitor companies found themselves invited into negotiations by four other acquiring companies. The pursuers themselves were being pursued.

Each of the 17 merger-minded bridegrooms had dates with up to 16 of the prospective brides.

The latter had been selected in advance by the Brown company as having special technical abilities of interest to the acquirers.

***

Because all the negotiations had to be conducted with secrecy, Brown dispersed the meetings in 20 widely-separated rooms.

The 17 acquiring companies were mostly small to medium in size, ranging from $2,500,000 to $150,000,000 in annual sales. Each had received in advance from the Brown organization a directory of 400 acquisition prospects in this region of the U.S. The catalogue contained a one-page printed description of each prospect, but identified them only by code numbers until the negotiations actually were scheduled.

VANCOUVER (CP) — B111 Wosk's nine betting shops were open as usual Friday, two days after police raided seven of them and laid charges against Wosk and seven of his police managers.

Time Now Running Out For Swim Class Signup

Time is running out for those wanting to take advantage of the Colonist's free swimming lessons.

Deadline for applications is 5 p.m. Wednesday. Coupons, such as that appearing on Page 2, must be filled out, signed by a parent, and in the Colonist offices by that time.

The classes, limited again to children from seven to 14 years of age, will be held for seven weeks beginning July 2 at Hamsterly Beach at Elk Lake. They will be under the direction of chief instructor Margie Naysmith.

Those requiring transportation will be able to board a bus in front of the old North Ward school grounds next to the Colonist, 2631 Douglas. Tickets are $2.75 and must be picked up at the Colonist.

GORDE HUNTER Dark Ages

CLEANING OUT THE DRAWER...
HOLD IT, HUNTER, don't go running off with the mouth with praise for what city council is doing for sport unless you know all the facts. Gar Taylor, of the Victoria and District Baseball Association, is not under the collar at council for certain of their Royal Athletic Park policies.

The baseball association is providing, free of charge to the boys, a five-day baseball school starting June 26. Four top instructors are being brought in from the United States and the total cost—to the association, not the taxpayers—will be about $3,000.

Now here's the rub. The association applied for permission to use Royal Athletic Park for the school, which, incidentally, would be held during the day and not the evenings. The park is not in use for any other purpose at the time of the school. Permission refused. One of the reasons—it might damage the grass. Isn't that just lovely!

ROYAL ATHLETIC PARK has become a monument to stupidity. A comedy of errors right from the very beginning and now they are compounding the errors with more dark ages thinking. Because of the excessive cost of the place in the first place, it behooves those in charge to keep it in almost constant use. They're not.

Gar Taylor points out that the baseball association, without receiving grants of any kind from city coffers, is raising and spending many thousands of dollars every year in providing facilities and equipment for thousands of boys 14 to 18 years old in our area.

"SURELY," Taylor says, "on these grounds alone we should be able to get some consideration when it comes to the use of Athletic Park."

Nobody asked me, Mayor Hugh Stephen, but doesn't this sound logical to you? Isn't this why Victoria is spending that $777,000 you mentioned on athletic facilities? It is mainly for our youngsters, isn't it?

I'm sure many hard-working minor baseball people would be appreciative if you'd check into the matter and correct an obvious bottleneck. Your serve, your honor.

LONG HAIR, short hair, don't get me embroiled in the territorial argument. But I can't help think that those males who effect the long locks, must go through nothing but torture during our heat spells. A cooling brush cut has to be more comfortable...

SPARE ME from citizens who campaign about paying huge sums of personal and business taxes. Give me instead, the chance to pay the same thousands of dollars in taxes each year, because no matter how you slice it, it comes out they're still able to keep very comfortable sums for themselves. If they're so concerned about such taxation, why don't they liquidate everything and live off the interest?...

DO AWAY with high school graduation ceremonies? I think graduation, the grad dance and after-grad make for a pretty nice slice of nostalgia in later years and most reminiscing ex-grads wouldn't have it any other way...

I HAVE AT HAND a good suggestion from a friend re solution to the plight of junked cars that are fouling up our island more and more every day. He suggests that provincial and municipal governments could share the cost of a plan whereby they could be dumped in deep water, miles at sea. They could be loaded on barges, towed out and dumped and they would not harm a thing. Another suggestion is that they could be used as breakwater fill. Whatever, there has to be a better method than the present abandoning process and we'd better find it soon or find ourselves felled deep in clunkers...

Eating to Lose Weight 'Appealing Nonsense'

By G. T. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am trying to lose weight and have read articles on "eat yourself to weight-loss" programs.

The authors say that by eating certain foods you burn up more calories digesting the food than you normally would. One article said a hard-boiled egg has 81 calories but that your body burned up 92 calories digesting it. It said the apples, oranges and grain cereals do the same. It sounds too good to be true.

I also find that about a week before my menstrual periods I become very tired and depressed and my appetite is uncontrollable, so I eat more than ever but never feel satisfied.

I gain anywhere from three to seven pounds and then lose it. Is this uncontrollable hunger all in my head, as my mother says, or is there a logical reason for it?—M.B.

There are at least three important weight problems in this one young woman's letter and I can predict right now that I'll remain on this general topic for the next two or three days.

Losing weight is not a simple problem. Reduced to simplest denominators, if you use up more calories than you absorb in the form of food, you lose weight. If you eat more than you use up, you gain.

But actually doing it is not that easy. There are at least a dozen ways that a reducing diet can go wrong.

There are also pitfalls like trying to find some easy way to reduce without effort or thinking. This appealing nonsense about foods that "burn up calories" is one of them.

Suppose you ate nothing but eggs, apples, oranges and grain cereals for a few days—all you wanted of them. You could keep yourself nourished without difficulty, and even gain weight.

Yet, according to the burning-up-calories theory, you should be losing weight! One way to reduce successfully is to stay away from these gimmick diets.

Bertrand Fights For Leadership

ed a raucous welcome as he walked up to the platform. He flung his arms in the air in a sign of victory.

The Cardinal floor demonstration that broke prior to his speech went on for about seven minutes, with shouting, cheering delegates marching around the front of the raised podium. In his speech Cardinal touched on major themes in his campaign.

The 44-year-old former dean of law at the University of Montreal was given a loud cheer when he told delegates: "I want to continue the work begun by Daniel Johnson."

The five caucus members who have endorsed the education minister's candidacy rushed up to the platform, accompanied by the education minister's wife and children.

The Bertrand bands joined in the noise-making. The Premier, carried into the arena on the shoulders of his caucus supporters, was carried out the same way. He was smiling broadly.

Cardinal walked out of the arena amid his poster-carrying clan. He also was smiling broadly.

VOTE TODAY

The voting will begin at 7 p.m. today. The results are not expected to be known until 11 p.m.

Tension mounted beneath the glossy surface of the political convention.

BITTERNESS CITED

Politicians are worried about how united their party will be at the end of the leadership fight, which has split the cabinet and provoked bitterness among organizers in its political backrooms.

Police evacuated the Coliseum Friday night after an anonymous telephone call warning of a bomb at the site of the Union Nationale leadership convention. None was found.

Police said the call received at 11 p.m. said the bomb would go off at 11:15.

Policecom, present by the hundreds to maintain order during an anti-government demonstration scheduled today, were concerned about violence that erupted earlier Friday.

Exciting Sale of Precious Emeralds Attracts Victorians!

Do you admire the cool green, restful beauty of that most precious of gems, the emerald? Then, if you have not already done so, may we suggest that you give second priority to all other shopping engagements and hurry on down to 1209 Douglas Street, the home of W. H. Grassie, Jewelers. Here you will find a superb collection of genuine emeralds. Most important, these rare and valuable gems have been on sale for the past week at a guaranteed saving to customers of 30%.

Grassie's are extremely pleased with the keen interest being shown in these fine imported jewels. Much of the enthusiasm has been generated by the attractive sale prices. (When has there ever been a sale of genuine emeralds in Victoria before?)

The emeralds may be purchased loose—or mounted in modern jewelry... rings, brooches, bracelets, earrings, etc... Many of them ablaze with diamond accents. The loose gems are sized from .14 to 6 carats, and price-tagged according to size and quality. Every stone is guaranteed genuine and is covered by a written insurance certificate stating size and appraised value.

Why not buy her an exquisite emerald ring for her birthday—or an emerald and diamond brooch for her anniversary? We can set your emerald in so many enchanting mountings. We know you will find something to thrill you.

Sample values in loose emeralds:

Pensions Press Problem

increase are not particularly concerned however that the superannuation account is merely a statistic.

Their point is that the government as a good employer has an obligation to ensure that their pension keeps pace with increases in the cost of living.

The last pension adjustment was in 1953 and experts estimate that the cost of living has jumped 50 per cent since then. In other words, many of the superannuates dollars are now worth only 50 cents.

Finance Minister Benson also disclosed recently that 1,436 of the superannuates receive monthly pensions of less than $30 a month.

Stanley Knowles, the NDP House leader, has led the battle in Parliament for pension increases for the retired civil servants.

He was a member of the special parliamentary committee which two years ago recommended "immediate" increases for the pensioners, and he needles the government almost weekly about when action will be taken to increase the pensions.

To date, government spokesmen have declined to give any indication as to what action may be taken and when. The usual reply is that the question is "under study."

Treasury Board president Drury told a group of superannuates who recently travelled to Ottawa to plead their case that the government couldn't very well give its own retired employees an increase while ignoring the plight of other pensioners.

He said a review of all pensioners was underway and that it might prove more equitable to simply increase payments made under the Canada Pension Plan. In this way, he explained, superannuates as well as other pensioners would receive increases to bolster their inflation-shrunk pensions.

Pompidou in Power

Cabinet List Sunday From New Premier?

PARIS (CP) — Georges Pompidou, former teacher, banker and Gaullist premier, was inaugurated as president of France Friday in a solemn ceremony at Elysee Palace. In his first major move, he named Jacques Chaban-Delmas as the new premier.

Chaban-Delmas, Speaker of the National Assembly, succeeds Maurice Couve de Murville, the man who replaced Pompidou when Charles de Gaulle dismissed Pompidou from the premier's post last year. Chaban-Delmas' appointment had been anticipated.

CABINET LIST

As he left Elysee Palace after spending 50 minutes with Pompidou, Chaban-Delmas said he will present his cabinet list to the president as soon as it is completed. This is expected Sunday night.

The inauguration ceremonies surrounded with tributes to de Gaulle, who quit the presidency April 28.

LARGE MAJORITY

"I will evoke first of all the person of Gen. de Gaulle," Pompidou said in his formal acceptance speech. "It is he who endowed our country with institutions thanks to which we have known stability for 10 years."

De Gaulle was absent from the ceremonies.

mas are expected to continue de Gaulle's basic policies in the immediate future.

The new premier, at 57, is an experienced politician who served as a minister under the Fourth Republic while playing a major role in helping de Gaulle to return to power in 1958.

BORDEAUX MAYOR

He is not expected to play a major role as an initiator of policy, concentrating more on day-to-day politics.

Chaban-Delmas, 54, is mayor of the port city of Bordeaux.

Pompidou's efforts in forming a new government have run into difficulties, mainly revolving around Foreign Minister Michel Debre and Antoine Pinay, the 77-year-old conservative who has been the leading candidate for finance minister.

Debre, who has served as premier, finance minister and foreign minister, has become the symbol of orthodox Gaullism to which the strong Gaullist majority in the National Assembly is particularly attached.

The orthodox Gaullists have made it clear that they will not be happy if Pompidou presses his policy of broadening his support too far.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN

While the final shape of the government has not yet been fixed, informed sources expected Interior Minister Raymond Marcellin and Social Affairs Minister Pierre Messmer to go and there was uncertainty about the future of Education Minister Edgar Faure.

Pompidou, answering congratulatory cables from the Soviet leadership, told President Nicolai Podgorny that Franco-Soviet co-operation "corresponds to the interests of our two countries."

Pompidou also sent a message to British Prime Minister Wilson saying Anglo-French co-operation is indispensable to an independent united Europe and world peace.

Ecuador Seizes U.S. Tuna Boats

FROM UPI, LAT

Ecuadorian authorities reported Friday the seizure of seven foreign tuna boats, four of them of U.S. registry, allegedly poaching in territorial waters. They said three other U.S. boats "escaped" capture.

At the same time in Port of Spain, Trinidad, the U.S. assured Latin America of continued support and proposed a six-point assistance package to relieve Latin's fears.

The move came as the climax to an Organization of American States conference that had threatened to break up in bitterness and division.

The U.S. plan fell far short of satisfying Latin American demands of sweeping concessions in both trade and aid.

The six points included, elimination of an irritating clause in loan agreements; renewed efforts by U.S. to persuade nations to extend preferential trade treatment and reaffirmation of a $15,000,000 loan to the International Coffee Organization.

Meanwhile, Ecuador said the U.S. boats seized were identified by the Ecuadorian navy as the Royal Pacific, Neptune, Bold Venture and Marietta, all of San Diego, Calif. The Ecuadorians did not identify the three U.S. boats they said escaped seizure.

Of the capture of the U.S. boats the navy said only that they had been seized "within 200 miles of the Ecuadorian coast."

They said the three other foreign boats seized were Japanese, the Sumi Maru, Hito Maru and Kureno Maru. They were reported to have been captured by two patrol boats 150 miles off the Ecuadorian-owned Galapagos Islands. The Japanese vessels and their crews—82 persons in all—were escorted into port at nearby San Cristobal Island.

The Ecuadorians flatly denied reports from the San Diego-based American Tunaboat Association that one of the seized ships, the Neptune, had been fired on by the Ecuadorian warship Guayaquil, on loan to the South American country by the United States under a mutual aid pact.

"There were no shots fired," the spokesman said. (In San Diego, an association spokesman said at least five U.S. tuna boats had been captured and that "six to 12" others in the American fishing fleet "went along with the captured boats voluntarily.")

(The association said Neptune had been strafed by the Guayaquil but reported no injuries aboard.)

Lynch Majority Solid

Irish Voters Disappoint Labor

DUBLIN (CP) — The governing Fianna Fail party led by Prime Minister Jack Lynch was assured of retaining power in Ireland Friday after an election in which voters showed they were in no mood for change.

As the results of the general election Wednesday were almost all in Friday, the Fianna Fail party held 73 seats in the 144-member Dail (parliament). Five results were still not known.

The fine Gael party won 48 seats and the Labor party 17. An independent won one seat.

Pre-election predictions had said that the Fianna Fail, which has governed Ireland for 12 years, would lose much of its majority.

But Irish voters disappointed the Labor party which had looked to the election as a springboard for rejuvenation. Instead the strength of the parties remained virtually the same.

In the last parliament, Fianna Fail (Soldiers of Destiny) had 74 seats, Fine Gael (Irish party) had 46 and Labor 18.

LABOR BID FAILS

Labor in its campaign emphasized modern issues such as Ireland's application to join the European Common Market. But the Labor attack on the veteran breaking image of the Fianna Fail has less appeal than expected.

Observers said many Irishmen were preoccupied with the increasing cost of living, especially the spiralling rise in the cost of a pint of Irish stout. In the last year the cost of beer has increased 200 per cent. Beer taxes have risen from 33 to 70 per cent of the retail price.

ONE CONSOLATION

A consolation for the Labor party was the election of its leading intellectual, Conor Cruise O'Brien, who was a special United Nations envoy to The Congo and for the last two years Albert Schweitzer professor of humanities at New York University, won a seat in a Dublin district.

Lynch, 52, scored a runaway victory in his Cork constituency. All his ministers were re-elected.

Lynch won the prime ministry three years ago as a compromise candidate when younger contenders were fighting for the succession to Sean Lemass.

He made this election a personality issue with slogan "Let's back Jack" and based his campaign on a three-week meet-the-people tour, shaking every hand within reach.

During Sabbath Prayers

Blasts Injure Four Near Wailing Wall

From UPI

Three explosions near the Wailing Wall rocked Jerusalem Friday night as Jews flocked to the shrine for Sabbath prayers. Four persons, including two American tourists, were wounded.

In Cairo, Egyptian military sources said Israeli gunners hurled rockets and shells into Suez City and other towns on the southern end of the Suez Canal in the heaviest bombardment along the cease-fire line in three months.

The series of explosions in Jerusalem ripped a hole in a house and blocked Hasharheret Street, used by Jews and tourists to reach the Wailing Wall, with rubble.

One Arab was seriously hurt and an Israeli soldier was slightly injured in the blasts near the wall, one of the holiest of Jewish shrines.

About 2,000 people were praying at the Wailing Wall at the time of the explosions, which police said were caused by three 10-pound charges.

Witnesses said there was no panic and Sabbath worshippers concluded their prayers before dispersing quietly.

POWER CURBED

The explosions followed a blast in Jerusalem Thursday night which damaged a power pylon, causing a partial blackout in the city.

Israeli officials said one Arab was killed and 15 wounded when a grenade thrown at an Israeli army truck in Gaza missed the target and landed in the middle of a crowd.

The Tax Bite

OUT OF THE constitutional conference in mid-month came no hint of proposals that would sadden the Canadian taxpayer: only that consideration would be given to allowing the provinces to edge into the indirect tax field, now Ottawa's preserve. This is the field where taxes are least consciously and therefore least painfully paid by the public. The federal sales tax is a good example. The provinces, it is suggested, might gain new revenue by imposing, for instance, a turnover tax on merchants. But it is not suggested that Ottawa would reduce federal taxation accordingly. The unpleasant fact is that all the governments — federal, provincial and municipal — are looking for more money.

How much of the citizen's income now goes to government was strikingly noted by Robert Thompson, the now-Progressive-Conservative former federal Social Credit leader, in the budget debate. According to Mr. Thompson — and he took the figures from the budget papers presented to Parliament by Finance Minister Edgar Benson — the Canadian net national income in 1968 was $50,628,000,000. He described the net national income as the current earnings of the Canadian factors of production — land, labor and capital — from productive activity. Total revenues of federal, provincial and municipal governments for 1968, Mr. Thompson observed, amounted to $24,200,000,000.

Thus, "The percentage of income taken from the Canadian taxpayer's pockets by the various tax collectors amounts to just over 47 per cent."

Put it another way and, if Mr. Thompson is right, most of us are working nearly half of every day to pay for government and the services and benefits which, in their various forms, it provides.

Mr. Thompson's first concern was that, "Historically, no free society has survived when the amount of its citizens' income required by government has passed 50 per cent. We are moving continually and continuously nearer that mark. The budget of the minister of finance does nothing to reverse this trend. Under his direction, thus far at least, the country is moving relentlessly toward an economic crisis."

He may be unduly alarmed and gloomy. But the figures suggest that however the tax pie may be cut, however the credit for services and blame for taxes may be distributed, however taxes may be concealed in prices, Canadians are now paying for more government than they can possibly relish.

Congress Contrast

IF THE KREMLIN'S POLICY-MAKERS hoped to impress other than Communist nations by a parade of solidarity at the recently completed world party conference in Moscow they must be disappointed.

"They were not even able to persuade Romania's greatly daring Nicolae Ceausescu to join in the condemnation of Red China not to dissuade him from criticizing the Soviet attitude towards nationalism and full sovereignty in Warsaw Pact states."

They were unable to convince all the participating delegates that the invasion of Czechoslovakia was justified, nor to escape condemnation of that outrage by Italian, British and Australian delegates.

The London Observer has this comment: "Insofar as the Russian leaders take notice of anyone, it is of other Communist parties rather than bourgeois commentators. Indeed the more Communist parties echo John Gollan's condemnation (he is the leader of the British Communist Party) — the greater the chance that the Russians will be made aware of just how counter-productive their invasion of Czechoslovakia was."

"Certainly the abject spectacle of Czechoslovakia's own leader, Dr. Gustav Husak, speaking in defence of Russia's action, is not going to convince anyone. If anything it is painfully reminiscent of the Stalin era when the dictator's victims were forced to condemn themselves."

How true. It will have been noted, of course, that neither North Vietnam nor North Korea attended the conference, which, incidentally, drew representation from 75 nations. Their absence is explained by the main theme of the Soviet-drawn agenda: the vilification of Red China as a renegade from the movement and an enemy of true communism.

The Asian Communists could not afford to offend their big neighbor, whose nationalism nowadays takes the form of isolationism. But it is doubtful, in any event, that their sympathies are with Moscow rather than Peking.

At the same time the Moscow conference was in session the Congress of Socialist International was in progress in Britain, attended by delegates from 50 nations. It was not spectacular, but it contrasted very markedly to that of the Communists. This was the eleventh of the regular biennial meetings of the Congress, and its purpose was not to defend one big brother against the pretensions of a rival, and to condone an international crime.

"Socialist faith in parliamentary methods and in national self-direction," as the London Times observes, "stands up well in the year after Czechoslovakia."

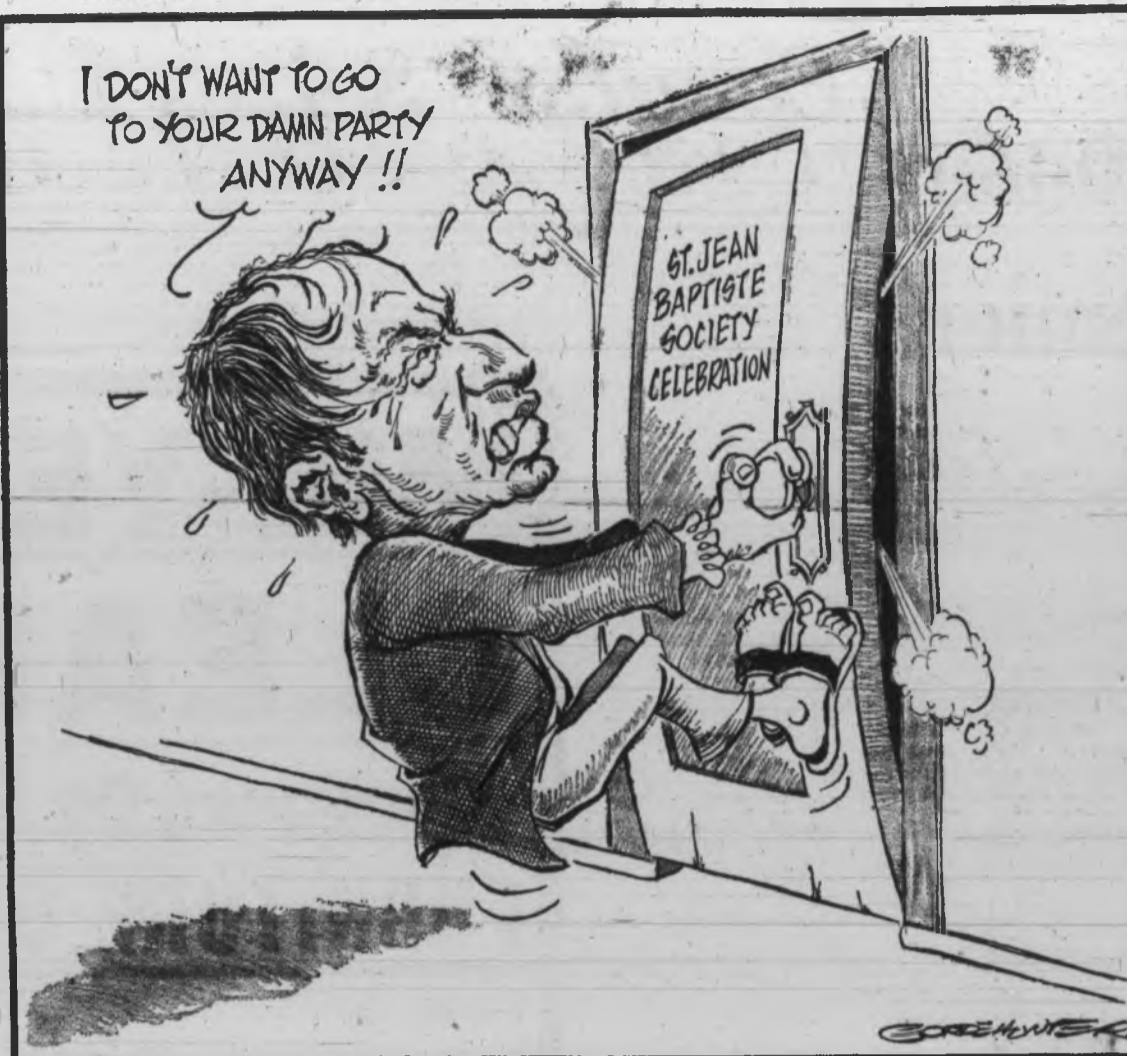

But the big contrast between the two conferences was in the co-operation and sober planning of the delegates at one and the obvious conflict and managed rhetoric of the other. And from the comparison the socialists can take considerable satisfaction.

The Difference

MR. HEATH MACQUARRIE: . . . I do not hold Bell stock. I would be very ill at ease in their boardroom. Indeed, I would not know how in the world to get into their boardroom. My only fond feeling for the Bell Telephone Company is that since the minister has taken office I have had much better telephone service than mail service.

I have no prejudice against the NDP point of view, I have found that during my 12 years in this house I have more often been in accord with that point of view than with the point of view of the Liberal party. While the NDP may be wrong, I think they are usually compassately wrong, whereas the Liberals are inclined to be patently wrong . . .

That's it, Pierre—play hard to get.

Facts Demolish Theory

By LUBOR J. ZINK

Marxist Peace-Preaching Loses Its Appeal When Soviet Warns of War with China

REPORTS from the world conference of Communist parties in Moscow indicate that the Soviet Union is gearing for the possibility of war with China.

Last week Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev told his comrades from 74 countries that Mao's China, which boasts of not caring about the consequences of nuclear conflict, is preparing for a third world war against the Soviet Union.

Mr. Brezhnev may have been exaggerating the danger of the recent skirmishes along the Sino-Chinese border escalating into a major clash, but the admission of the possibility of war between states ruled by Communists is in itself staggering. It demolishes one of the major and diligently perpetuated myths of international communism.

For generations young idealists all over the world have been attracted to theoretical Marxism not only by its vision of a "classless society" but also by its promise of freeing mankind from the fear and scourge of war.

In recent years, as the economic debacle of Marxist theories and the totalitarian repressions in the Communist-ruled countries became more widely known, it has indeed been the "peace" appeal of textbook communism which provided the greatest recruiting attraction in a world scared by the spectre of nuclear Armageddon.

To the starry-eyed idealist or the better-Red-than-dead "liberal," the peace appeal of academic or emotional Marxism lies in its contention that war is the inevitable product of the "contradictions and conflicts inherent in the imperialist system of capitalism."

Hence, remove capitalism from the international scene, put communism (or "socialism" for a start) in its place and all the causes of war would disappear. Once all the countries of the world join the "socialist system," they will live in peace and brotherhood forever after.

This is the credo of all Marxists and their glibly helpful Mr. Brezhnev has dealt it a grievous blow. For if tensions threatening war can develop between states ruled by governments which claim to be implementing the fundamental theories of Marxism, what's left of the pacifist claims of communism?

racies while accepting a massive Soviet military buildup as a necessary shield and power base of all the "progressive forces of peace?"

The standard argument of the unilateral disarmers has been that the sole reason for the existence of the huge Soviet military machine is the "capitalist threat" to socialism and world peace. What will they say now when Brezhnev tells them that the Soviet Union must also maintain strong forces for war with a state ruled by Marxists?

Will they now perceive through the selective screen of their double-standard that communication of the whole world, unless accompanied by a suffocating tyranny from a single power center, would not eliminate conflict?

And will they now try to shout their favorite "military-industrial complex" quote from the late President Eisenhower's farewell address with equal zest in Moscow and Peking as they do in Washington and the other Western capitals?

Incidentally, even their use of that overworked quotation is dishonest. For, as President Nixon reminded us in his much-needed lashing of the unilateral disarmers, Eisenhower did not stop when he said: "... We must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex."

Eisenhower followed that warning, which could never have been sounded in totalitarian Russia or China, with another: "We must also be alert to the equal and opposite danger that public policy could itself become the captive of a scientific-technological elite."

And, making crystal clear the need for adequate defence against the self-declared enemies of freedom, he added: "A vital element in keeping the peace is our military establishment. Our arms must be mighty, ready for instant action, so that no potential aggressor may be tempted to risk his own destruction."

So when you hear again a befuddled pacifist quoting Eisenhower in support of the fashionable attacks on the defence of democracy, ask him to quote the whole passage.

And ask him whether he perceives any difference between a "military-industrial complex" serving the defence imperatives of a freely elected government and one which is run by a totalitarian, one-party dictatorship which, checked only by fear of nuclear retaliation, seeks to impose its brand of Red fascism on the rest of the world. ## Russia Seeks to Dominate the Seven Seas While U.S. Argues on Competition's Cost

A PANEL of international experts believes the Soviets are embarked on a maritime strategy which aims at domination of all the world's sea areas they consider strategically critical to their plans.

In a 142-page report written for the Georgetown University Centre for Strategic and International Studies, the 14-member panel of professors, writers, government officials and former naval officers asserted:

"This (Soviet) policy means, in the first instance, attempts to control the Baltic Sea, the Black Sea and ultimately the Mediterranean. The policy also envisions Soviet predominance in the Sea of Japan to the east, the Greenland-Iceland-Faeroe Island gap to the west, and the Indian Ocean to the south."

"Simultaneously, the Soviet Union is probably striving to become the dominant power in such vital straits as the Bosphorus and Dardanelles, through which its fleets must pass to reach the high seas."

The panel added that the Soviet Union, in its attempt to break out of its long history of continental confinement, wants to gain a dominant influence at several major junctions, such as the Suez Canal, Strait of Malacca and the Strait of Gibraltar.

After reviewing the highlights of the Soviet buildup of sea power, including warships, oceanographic effort, fishing fleet and merchant marine, the panel noted the implications for U.S. policy.

"The momentum and scope of the Soviet maritime program, rather than specific achievements, are the main challenge to the United States . . ."

"The panel recommends strongly that the United States undertake a much larger national commitment to its own oceanic programs, both civilian and military. If it fails to do so, the U.S. global role could be seriously diminished."

"It will have at its disposal ever-decreasing means to deter, counter or frustrate Soviet political moves and possible military involvements around the globe. Its economic and political influence in support of its values and interests throughout the world will progressively decline."

As a presidential candidate, Richard M. Nixon promised to "revitalize" the U.S. merchant marine and provide "a navy second to none." Since moving into the White House, he has again pledged to reverse the long-time downward drift of American commercial fleets, but has said little about modernizing the navy.

In his last budget, President Johnson asked for $2.8 billion for naval shipbuilding and conversion, but Mr. Nixon, in effect, cut the program by $400 million because of previous "cost over-runs" on ship programs.

Congress has not yet completed action on the 1970 budget, but the anti-military mood prevalent on Capitol Hill suggests that the president will have to fight hard to get a net of $2.4 billion for new navy ships.

Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, chairman of the Georgetown centre, noted in his preface to the report that there is an increasing awareness among Americans of the significance of sea power on world events.

"But that awareness has not yet been translated into understanding of the need to develop and use sea power for the good of the United States," he wrote. (Copley News Service)

Egypt Doesn't Need the Canal

By IRENE BEESON
from Cairo

HAD there been peace in the Middle East, Egypt would now be preparing to celebrate, on November 17, the 100th anniversary of the opening of the Suez Canal.

Egyptians would have celebrated not only 100 years of the canal's existence and services to world shipping, but also the 13th anniversary of the nationalization of the Suez Canal Company, which secured for the country its fair share of the canal's revenues, placed upon the Egyptians the responsibility of managing the waterway and confirmed Egypt's recently restored sovereignty in the area.

In the 10 years between nationalization (July 1956) and the Six Day War of June, 1967, which brought canal activities to a standstill, the Egyptian authority carried out extensive improvements.

Europe and the Soviet Union are losing most through closure of the canal. The oil-rich Arab countries are paying Egypt compensation for its loss of toll revenues. For Israel, which has ports on the Mediterranean and the Red Sea of Akaba, reopening of the canal is important only if it brings the political prestige of freedom of navigation it has been denied since the state was created in 1948.

For Egypt, prolonged closure of the canal means dependence upon other countries for its revenues and unpredictable delays in carrying out important development projects in the area. Israeli occupation of the Sinai Peninsula and systematic shelling of the towns and industrial centres on the West Bank of the canal have brought economic life in the area to a standstill at enormous cost to Egypt.

At the same time the waterway forms a natural defence barrier. The existence of this stretch of water makes it difficult, if not impossible, for Egypt militarily to regain the land occupied by Israel.

Economically, the canal is not as vitally important to Egypt as it appeared to be two years ago. Closure of the waterway has altered the pattern of trade for Europe to a certain extent.

Several Arab countries east of the canal have had to turn to Far Eastern markets for imports which were prohibitive via the long route. For Egypt, too, conversion of the Canal Zone into a military front line has dictated a reorientation. By a combination of these circumstances, internal developments have shifted towards the western part of the country.

"Strictly speaking, we do not need the canal," an Egyptian friend remarked. "And on the whole it has brought us more trouble than benefit. But it seems that the world needs it."

Higher Education's Value in Question

NOW that our great leaders have our country in a mess morally, financially, economically and politically, with everyone, even the non-thinkers, apprehensive, while others are lashing out violently it is nauseating to listen to these professional bunglers, with a diploma to prove it, continue to prate about the so-called values of higher education for the masses. They themselves are horrible examples of the end product, their ultimate goal being welfare for all.

Common sense and logic for over 40 years have been superseded by frothy verbiage completely ignoring the facts of life. The writer has nothing against good basic education, or even university for the small percentage who can absorb it, but many years ago I came to the appalling realization that we are all going to suffocate under an avalanche of diplomas and professional blunders. This flat statement does not include the sincere 10 per cent whose early warnings were scorned. Fiction is always more palatable than fact.

It is time we called a spade a spade and decided if this engulfing monster which swallows the young hulk hulk and bankrupts Canada in the process, is the wrong kind of education. Much too much of marble halls and nerve-racking futile study which has no single application to the serious issues confronting Canada today. If students wish to study way-out

Vicar of Bray Pattern

Murray Blair, MD, Saturday, June 7, doesn't require an explanation, but he needs this clarification.

Private enterprise is not fallacious, it is most necessary for the dynamic growth of any free society. Private (free) enterprise becomes stifled when a nation allows its corporate few to control its economy and dictate the terms of production, the allocation of capital, the price of products and the distribution of profits.

Socialism aims at co-ordinating the activities within a state for the welfare of the many at distinct from the few, and it seems to me that when the Canadian workers, as human beings, have more control over their own destiny than the reasons for strikes, poverty and national unrest will not exist.

The "welfare state" is already with us to a degree, the present government has acquired hydro and ferries and has a form of Medicare; undertakings such as these were once denounced as "Godless" socialist doctrine. Isn't it eminently apparent then that private enterprise and socialism are highly compatible? What Dr. Blair and many others have not fully understood is the justice implicit in socialist aims for a democratic program of planned economy and Canadian public ownership of certain vital industries and services.

Or does he confuse the terms private enterprise and gross capitalism? In general, I look askance at all political parties with their tongue-in-cheek promises; like the old Vicar of Bray, my support goes to whoever party is in power. However, I had to reply to Dr. Blair because his conflicting statements and obvious apprehension imply dishonest innuendo. Let us see it "the way it is."

When will Victoria learn to stand on its own feet? There is nothing English about it or its inhabitants, except perhaps some remote ancestry, so why

They Simply Fade Away

More than two years ago a joint Committee of the Senate and Commons made a recommendation that all federal civil servants, who had been retired prior to 1963, should be granted an increase in their pensions.

As one of the expectant ones, I would like to publish this message, being sent to the Honorable Minister of Finance: Please, don't get an ache in your head; We, still, can afford to buy bread. Dear Benson, don't worry, Don't act in a hurry. Soon, there'll be more of us dead.

STILL HOPING.

A World University

Dwight D. Eisenhower has passed into history. We hope that history will not overlook a suggestion he made in Sweden in 1962 to help the world "turn aside from the road leading to suicidal war."

Speaking to the World Confederation of Organizations of the Teaching Profession, representing more than 4,000,000 teachers, he urged the creation of "an international school — as a new and different kind of clearing house for world thinking and teaching and learning in the vast field of human relations. Such a world institution would be dedicated to the education of young people . . . about the things that separate nations and tend to prevent them from living peacefully and securely together."

This appeal did not seem to arouse much international interest at the time. In 1964 The Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federations, representing a quarter million Canadian parents, undertook to promote the idea of establishing a world university, dedicated to "the arts of peace" — possibly but not necessarily in Canada.

There are now other groups around the world pursuing similar aims.

The project is so huge that it could never become reality without the support of governments, and perhaps UNESCO. At the moment the Canadian government (the secretary of state) is considering a brief from us asking that Ottawa should undertake a feasibility study of the idea to establish a World University on Canadian soil; alternatively, that they should ask UNESCO to study the idea.

Professor C. Max Bedford, University of Saskatchewan, has said: "In the exploding world of knowledge, the science of things has far outstripped the science of people. This cultural lag threatens the whole of civilization — perhaps even all life on earth. A significant contribution to overcoming this ominous gap could be made by a community of scholars of world stature in the fields of the humanities, the behavioral sciences and law. Such a World University would be an intellectual seedbed. Its ideas and its students would spread throughout the world into all institutions of government and of learning, providing the world with desperately needed leadership for the solution of problems that have reached a state of critical urgency in this atomic and space age."

To widen understanding of, and support for the World University proposal we are preparing a booklet outlining the concept. If any of your readers would like to know more about it, we will be glad to send a copy of the booklet when it is published . . .

Placing the Blame

I would like to comment on the Bill Thomas article "Audience Scarce," in Sunday's Colonist.

From Mr. Thomas' article on the condition of live theatre in Victoria, I quote: "The fact is that excellent productions have been mounted and still they lacked audiences. They were not lacking in talent or in production quality — just people."

If Mr. Thomas had been a little kinder over the year, with his criticisms of some of the plays, maybe the audiences would have been larger. Some of Mr. Thomas' reviews certainly did not encourage people to attend the plays.

Bras d'Or Scored as Duplication

Company Blamed in Costly Hydrofoil Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons public accounts committee says negligence by de Havilland Aircraft of Canada caused the $6,500,000 fire aboard the hydrofoil HMCS Bras d'Or in November, 1966.

In its fourth report tabled Friday in the House, the committee also said the money spent on the experimental anti-submarine vessel was a duplication of effort, because development information on hydrofoils could have been obtained from the United States Navy.

The hydrofoil experiment was initially given a $9,100,000 expenditure appropriation. Because of other factors, including the fire, the cost had increased to $50,000,000 by January, 1968.

"It is the opinion of your committee that the treasury board was not provided with a proper estimate of the probable overall cost of this project at the time initial approval of the project was sought."

The committee said conclusions of a board of inquiry into the fire noted that only one man was in the engine room of the hydrofoil when the blaze started.

It also noted that one other man was stationed alongside a mechanical fire-warning device outside the vessel which was supposed to operate fire extinguishing apparatus after 15 seconds.

The committee said evidence presented to them showed conclusively that engine-room piping was hot up to specification and that hydraulic fluid leaking from these pipes was the probable cause of the blaze.

"Further conclusions were that the fire-fighting provisions and organization were inadequate to cope with a fire of this magnitude. The inspection records did not afford proof that the hydraulic system in use had been fully inspected."

"In view of this evidence, the public accounts committee is of the opinion that the fire occurred because of negligence by the de Havilland Co."

The committee said greater reliance on the experience of other countries "could have affected large economies in the program."

"While departmental officials have indicated that there was liaison with United States naval authorities on development of hydrofoils, your committee is of the opinion that a good deal of money expended on research was a duplication of effort."

The committee also said it had grave reservations about the government having insured de Havilland against fire simply to reduce the contract price by the amount of a premium the company would have had to pay for fire insurance coverage by a private insurance firm.

"If, however, the Crown continues to act as the insurer on development projects and projects involving highly flammable materials and fluids, then the committee recommends more careful consideration should be given to the terms of the fire insurance coverage and not to use the standard form of marine fire insurance coverage."

Fear Shadows Delegates At Quebec City

CP, from Quebec City

Tensions at the Union Nationale party's leadership convention took on a new twist Friday following four incidents of violence.

Delegates to the three-day convention were reported to be fearful of further violence after a Molotov cocktail was thrown into a hotel lobby, a gunpowder bomb damaged a mailbox and two luxury cars were heavily damaged by fire in the early morning hours.

Police were searching for two men and a woman believed connected with at least the mailbox explosion.

The first explosion occurred shortly before 3 a.m. when a Molotov cocktail, a gasoline-filled bottle with a lighted wick, was hurled into the lobby of the Chateau Frontenac Hotel where many convention delegates are staying.

The explosion set a couch on fire and burned the trouser leg of an unidentified man who was later found to be uninjured when examined by police.

Post-Reception Chats

About 40 persons were milling about at the hotel at the time of the explosion, chatting with friends or returning to their rooms from various receptions.

Kirk Brown, photo editor for Canadian Press in Montreal, was standing in the lobby about 50 feet away from where the man was resting on the couch.

He did not see the object thrown but saw flames erupt on a couch opposite the one on which the man was lying.

Flames spread to the man's trouser leg and he fell writhing to the floor. Several bystanders helped him douse the flames.

The man appeared in municipal court later Friday and was fined $10 for drunken and disorderly conduct.

Police confiscated the film Brown took of the incident and underdeveloped all but one of the photos in processing. They were later returned.

Within five minutes of the hotel explosion, a bomb containing a small charge of gunpowder ripped through a mailbox and underdeveloped all but one of the photos in processing. They were later returned.

Limousines Damaged

An hour later, a luxury-class car parked near the Chateau and belonging to delegate Jean-Baptiste Lemieux of Montreal was damaged by fire.

About 5:30 a.m., a similar car was destroyed by fire outside a hotel in nearby Ste. Foy. It belonged to Gaston Dupuis of St. Hughes, whose wife is an alternate delegate from Bagot county.

Bagot is represented in the national assembly by Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal who, along with Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand and back-bencher Andre Leveille, is contesting the leadership.

Bertrand said in an interview later that the use of bombs is "a strange way to practice democracy."

Police said they are searching for a white Volvo carrying two men and a woman for questioning in connection with the mailbox explosion.

The Volvo is believed to belong to the wife of a former member of the Front de Liberation Quebecois, a terrorist organization seeking to win Quebec independence through violence.

Growth Fund

Tories Mean Business

CP, from Vancouver

New leader John de Wolf says the B.C. Conservative party is to be run as a growth corporation, with party members in a sense "shareholders," to make it financially self-sustaining.

At his first press conference since he won the party leadership convention, Mr. de Wolf said he has set a goal of amassing minimum assets of $500,000 within five years.

Mr. de Wolf said a number of types of investments are being considered, including real estate and an endowment fund to which party members would subscribe with dividends going for party use.

"We're going to operate the party on a business-like basis," he said.

He said a fund of $500,000 could produce $50,000 a year in revenue which would be adequate for financing the party.

It would produce a steady income, unlike the present political set-up in which parties become rich at election times and broke in between, he said.

Adjournment Threatened

Debate-Rule Storm Due

CP, from Ottawa

A parliamentary storm appears to be brewing following a report from the Commons procedure committee that it would permit the government to set limits unilaterally for Commons debate.

Shortly after the report was tabled Friday, Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) rose in the Commons to say that only government members on the 12-member committee voted for the report.

It proposed the following rules to limit time spent on House business:

● Rule 75A would provide for all-party agreement on time allocation.

● RULE 75B provides for time allocation when three of the four parties in the House agree.

● Rule 75C would give the government power to limit debate without agreement from any other party, although it would require three days to terminate debate on each stage of any bill.

There is apparently little disagreement with the first two rules but the third proposal Knowles described as dictatorial.

Rule 75C is similar to the controversial rule 16A which the government withdrew last December when the Commons was considering the new rules that went into operation Jan. 14.

There was a vigorous fight against 16A and a similar fight against the proposed 75C could scuttle plans for adjournment next Friday, June 27, for a summer recess.

Gerald Baldwin (Peace River), the Progressive Conservative House leader, said the government will have to be prepared to keep the Commons in session after next week's scheduled adjournment date if it insists that the full report be accepted.

Donald Macdonald, the government House leader, said the Commons will have to stay in session if important legislation dealing with regional economic disparities and transportation in the Atlantic region and the official languages bill is not passed by June 27.

"I would regret it if there were a filibuster on these measures and on the new allocation-of-time formula."

But the government was ready to go ahead without cooperation from the opposition. Macdonald said the government had been given a majority in last year's general election to carry out a legislative program and the Commons has to decide ultimately whether the program is going to be frustrated by endless debate.

Bill Debate

Languages Puppet Feared by Horner

CP, from OTTAWA

Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) said Friday the proposed official languages commissioner will be merely an instrument of federal government policy.

"He will have to carry out the wishes of the government because he can be removed on short notice," Horner told the Commons as debate resumed on the official languages bill.

Like many other Progressive Conservative MPs, including both supporters and opponents of the bill, he said the commissioner will have dangerously wide powers. He did not accept the government's contention that the commissioner will be simply an administrator.

The official languages bill would declare English and French languages of the federal government, with equal status in all its institutions, and would require the government to make its services available in both languages in selected areas called bilingual districts.

An official languages commissioner would be appointed to investigate complaints made under this legislation.

Horner was one of 17 Conservatives who opposed the bill on second reading. He did not tip his hand in advance of third reading, which may be given next week.

But he praised an amendment introduced by Melvin MacQuaid (PC—Cardigan), who has supported the bill and served on the all-party special committee that went over it clause by clause.

Horner said the amendment, which would give any individual the right to a public hearing before the languages commissioner could make an adverse report about him, and would also put the commissioner under the Official Inquiries Act, "goes a long way towards easing suspicions about this bill."

Justice Minister John Turner said earlier the government is not prepared to accept amendments, such as this one, that have already been debated and defeated in committee.

Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River), dealing with another part of the bill, said the provision on the rights of required, although only one time allocation motion would be necessary.

Blair said the proposed 75C would permit the government to terminate a minister against a bill. But it provided safeguards "against government impatience."

The proposed 75C as recommended by the procedure committee was termed "a final resort" by committee Chairman Gordon Blair (L—Grenville-Carleton).

The rule can be used only against one bill at a time and can apply only to one stage of a bill's passage each time it is implemented.

The rule could not be implemented in advance and it must provide at least a one-day debate on each stage of the bill. It would thereby require three days to pass each stage of a bill under the proposed rule—a minister would give notice of motion one day, it would be debated for two hours on the second, and it would become effective on the third day.

In the case of the report and third-reading stages, two full days of debate would be

Press Before Parliament

Briefing by Sharp Criticized

CP, From Ottawa

For the second straight day, opposition MPs rapped the government Friday for giving information to the press before giving it to Parliament. David Lewis (NDP—York South) protested in the Commons the decision of External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp to hold a news conference before reporting to Parliament on the trip to Scandinavian countries from which he returned earlier in the day.

The trip included a visit to Stockholm where Canada is having talks with China on diplomatic recognition.

Lewis, on a question of privilege, moved that Sharp be invited to make a statement in the Commons at 1 p.m. PDT, the time of the scheduled news conference. Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield seconded the motion. Deputy Speaker Albert Bechard ruled the motion out of order on the ground that only the government House leader can make a motion concerning House business.

Opposition MPs complained Thursday that a financial post story carried information from Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson that should have been given first in the Commons.

Shortly after the House sat at 11 a.m. Friday, Prime Minister Trudeau told Stanfield that Sharp would be in the Commons Monday and would make a statement on his Scandinavian trip.

Lewis said Sharp had returned in time to be in the Commons Monday.

North Korea, Vietnam

No Ploy for China Exchange

UPI, from Ottawa

Canada has no intention of recognizing the regimes in North Korea and North Vietnam to facilitate an exchange of ambassadors with Communist China, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Friday.

Sharp made the comment in a news conference after returning to Canada earlier in the day from a tour of Scandinavian capitals, including Stockholm where Canadian and Chinese officials are negotiating mutual diplomatic recognition.

Sharp refused to reveal topics under discussion in the substantive talks at Stockholm except that the subject of Taiwan was a central issue. The Chinese Nationalists have threatened to break off relations with Canada if it recognizes Red China.

In connection with the negotiations, Sharp was asked whether Canada was contemplating diplomatic recognition to any other Communist nations. He replied with a flat no. Later, the minister agreed he was referring to North Korea and North Vietnam.

The minister denied charges made in the Commons during his absence that he "humiliated" Canada by seeking meetings with junior officials in the Chinese embassy in Stockholm.

"I said if a representative (from Communist China) wanted to see me I would be prepared," Sharp said. He added that none did and that was "fine with me."

He reported talks were "progressing in a deliberate way," and stressed Canada was prepared to be "patient" in seeking the exchange of ambassadors.

One of the main talking points with government officials in the Scandinavian countries, Sharp said, concerned Finland's proposal to hold a preparatory meeting to a suggested east-west conference on European security.

Forest Fires Flaring At Headlong Pace

By DON COLLINS

New fires, born at the rate of one for every 10 minutes, were eating their way through British Columbia's tinder-dry woods Friday at what may be a record pace.

There were 144 outbreaks reported during the day, bringing the total of fires in the province to 312.

More than 100 of the new fires were spawned by lightning and many were fanned into quick growth by strong winds.

WORSE SEASON

Forestry officials said the province may be heading for the worst forest fire season on record. Vancouver Island was comparatively free of fire. The outlook for the immediate future was labelled "grim" by W. C. Phillips, chief of the B.C. Forest Service protection division.

NO RELIEF

He said dry and hot weather was expected to continue over most of the province.

Since the season opened May 1, fire has covered 250,000 acres of forest and fire-fighting costs have topped $1,000,000, Mr. Phillips said.

In late June, 1967 — the worst fire season recorded — only 10,000 acres had been burned.

INACCESSIBLE REGIONS
Many of the fires are in inaccessible regions of northern B.C., Mr. Phillips said. Flames are moving quickly through poor but marketable pine and scrub.

During the day two water bombers on loan from the Ontario government joined seven B.C. planes.

The federal government has said it will clear the way for U.S. aircraft if the need develops.

The picture across the province by late Friday:

● More than 2,200 men were on the firelines, most of them from logging operations and mills. There was no plan yet to conscript men on the street.

● Hardest hit area was the Kamloops forest district where 572 men and 37 bulldozers were battling 132 fires, 78 of them new.

● One of the largest fires was a 30,000-acre outbreak in the Dease Lake area near the Yukon border. Firefighters were flown into the area earlier and Friday a Canso aircraft capable of carrying 800 gallons of water was on the job.

● There were 54 fires in the Prince Rupert forest district and 71 in the Prince George district.

Campfire permits have been suspended throughout the province with the exception of small coastal areas and the Nelson forest district. Forest operations are restricted to early morning shifts.

The permit suspension does not apply to supervised provincial and federal parks, campsites and picnic grounds.

YUKON FIRES

Travel and recreation has been restricted in some areas east of the Rockies.

In the Yukon, 55 fires, nearly all out of control, continued to eat up young spruce and pine. Hot and dry weather kept the fire hazard to extreme.

Alberta's one fire out of control, 85 miles northwest of Peace River, started in commercial stands of spruce and pine, 100 to 120 years of age. There are 18 fires in the province.

King Fisherman

Chinook Catches Good and Deep

Catches of spring (chinook) salmon have been good in Cowichan Bay and around Secretary Island in the past few days, although reports indicate anglers have to go deep for them.

However, the cooler weather promised for the weekend could change that picture.

Bid Renewed On Hospital

Health Minister Ralph Lottmark said Thursday the federal government would be asked once more to share in the operating cost of all 170 psychiatric beds at the Eric Martin Institute which is to be attached to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

So far, he said, Ottawa has been adamant on the question of sharing operating costs of any more than 120 beds. However, the minister added, the alternative of using the remaining 50 beds for some other hospital purpose has been fully considered and found to be "too disruptive" to the operations of the new unit.

Laurentide Gladdens Shareholders

On what was nearly the longest day of the year, Laurentide Financial Corp. also made it one of the brightest for the holders of the various classes of preferred shares in the Vancouver-based company.

Dividend arrears, amounting in all to about $3,000,000, will be paid off July 21 to shareholders of June 30, according to a statement by the Laurentide board of directors.

The amounts to be paid on the various classes are: 5% per cent series, $1.26 per share; 6 1/2% per cent series, $1.51 to $1.24 per share; $1.40 series, $2.04 to $1.25 per share; $1.82 to $2.24 per share; $2 series secondary preferred, $5.30 per share.

PAYMENT SUSPENDED
Laurentide suspended dividend payment on its preferred shares in October, 1966.

At an extraordinary meeting of shareholders M. L. Goegein, president, said in the fiscal year ended June 30, Laurentide's net earnings would exceed $3,500,000, compared with 1968 earnings of about $2,100,000.

Shareholders also approved sale of $2,000,000 Laurentide securities to Power Corporation of Canada, which would increase Power's holding of Laurentide to 53.6 per cent.

SMALL BORROWERS

In tight money situations the small borrower should get preference from the banks.

This is the expressed view of the Bank of Canada and also of Finance Minister Benson.

Also the banks should give loan priorities in areas of slow growth.

In other words, the borrower in Victoria for Vancouver or Toronto) does not have the same chance of catching the friendly eye of his banker as does the borrower in slower moving Halifax, St. John, Winnipeg or Montreal.

It sounds a little bit like discrimination to me and I reckon it won't sit very well with the majority of the bank manager that I know.

EIGHTS AND NINES
The bond market is no longer at sixes and sevens. The rate is now eight and nine.

The Government of Canada is paying 8 per cent on a new nine-year loan, and the T. Eaton Co. for an extendable five-year debenture is offering a yield of 9.13 per cent.

OFFERS REJECTED

Transair Ltd., of Winnipeg has rejected a new offer of $4,000,000 by Quebecair Ltd. of Montreal for a controlling interest in Transair.

It was the second offer made by Quebecair. The first was rejected in May.

PROFITS INCREASED

Nine months results of Kelsey Hayes Canada Ltd., show a profit increase of over 55 per cent over the corresponding period of the previous year.

The Ontario based auto parts manufacturer in the three quarters ended May 31 made a net profit of $1,412,875 ($1.28 a share) compared with $904,024 ($2 cents) a year earlier.

JAMAICA CLAIMS LEAD

Jamaica claims it had the highest economic growth rate in 1968 of any country in the western hemisphere.

The tropical island in the heart of the Caribbean estimates its economic growth of 1968 at 9 per cent.

Investment in the island rose 30 per cent, and marketing opportunities increased as the result of participation in the Caribbean Free Trade Association (Carifta).

JUMBO'S FIRST SHOW

Air France says it expects to be the first airline to fly the new jumbo jets on a daily schedule in Canada.

The airline expects delivery of its first order of Boeing 747s sometime next spring and plans to begin a daily service between Montreal and Paris by May 15, 1970.

There will be a similar service between Montreal and Chicago.

Air France is designing its 747 interiors to handle 38 first-class and 316 economy-class passengers although the plane is built to accommodate 490. This gives it roomier seats and a greater measure of flying comfort.

VATICAN REINVESTING

The Vatican, in reports from Rome, is said to be considering selling most of its Italian investments and reinvesting the proceeds in foreign countries where religious orders are not called upon to pay tax.

No confirmation is forthcoming from the Vatican, but last year the Italian government removed the tax exemption from Vatican income. Taxes now due are estimated at about $2,000,000 a year.

In addition a legal interpretation of the Italian-Vatican Concordat was that the Vatican, in addition to being taxable on current earnings, would also have to pay back taxes to 1963.

Prosperous Business

Bennett Aim

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett says B.C. wants all kinds of primary and secondary industry but "prosperous companies only need apply."

The premier told a group of businessmen and civic officials attending opening ceremonies for an addition to the Dominion Glass plant in Burnaby that B.C. is only going to be prosperous if everybody is prosperous.

"I hope you make a lot of money, because B.C. only wants prosperous companies," he told the businessmen.

Financing Saves Shipyard

GLASGOW (AP)—A compromise with the government on financing appears to have saved Upper Clyde Shipbuilders, which built the liner Queen Elizabeth 2, from going into liquidation.

The company says it has decided to accept the government's offer of $9,300,000 in financing and to drop a demand for a total of $12,000,000. The government would obtain a 48-per-cent interest in the firm.

Cash Squeeze Claimed Lending Rate Booster

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two New York City bankers said Friday a cash squeeze and not a conspiracy last week sent the cost of borrowing money soaring to the highest level in U.S. history.

Alfred Britain, president of Bankers Trust Co., and George Moore, chairman of First National City Bank, told the House banking committee they acted independently within minutes June 9 in boosting the prime lending rate from 7.5 per cent to 8.5 per cent.

TRUST FOLLOWED

Committee chairman Wright Patman (D-Tex.) charged a "conspiracy" among banks caused the rate increase. Banks across the nation followed Bankers Trust, which announced the increase first, in raising their prime rates which go only to the best business customers.

A third banker, former assistant Treasury Secretary Robert Wallace, said President Nixon and Treasury Secretary David Kennedy could have avoided the latest round in interest rates, by using the power of their offices to talk bankers out of raising the rates.

Wallace served under presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson.

Gagecole's Six-Hitter Wins for Vancouver

Halifax is looking at least 10,000 miles away today for the Senior Amateur All-Stars of Victoria.

The host club ran into a tough right-handed pitcher and a slick Villa Motor Inn club from Vancouver at Royal Athletic Park on Friday, taking a 7-0 beating in the opening game of the double-knockout B.C. senior baseball championships.

Winner of the four-team event which ends Sunday wins a trip to the Canadian Summer Games which are to be held during August in Halifax.

And from Friday's showing, the Villa team will be tough to beat.

STRUCK OUT EIGHT

Murray Gagecole, a 20-year-old who played for University of Washington this year, mixed his pitches effectively, striking out eight batters, while giving up only two walks and six hits.

He stranded eight runners.

Vancouver tagged loser George Brice with one run in the first inning, but right fielder Stu Winrob led off with a single, stole second base, reached third on an error and scored on a passed ball.

Winrob again led off with a single in the third inning, went to third on former-Victoria Dave Graas' single and scored on Chapman's shot to centre field.

FOUR-RUN SPURT

Vancouver slapped five consecutive hits off Brice in the fourth inning, Singles by Bill Stebbings, Tim Chapman, Gagecole and Winrob and a double by Gras. A sacrifice fly from manager John Haar capped a four-run uprising.

Chapman added the final run in the sixth inning, singling with two out and scoring from first on leftfielder Les Brice's misplayed bunt.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

Today at 10 a.m., Trail, led by playing-manager Lou De Rosa, will play Victoria in the Victoria Senior Amateur League, meets the Okanagan-Mainline All-Stars, who feature former Victorian Jim Heighton and hockey stars Randy Agee and Wayne Dye of Vernon.

Victoria plays the loser of that game in an elimination contest at 2 p.m. with Vancouver meeting the winner at 8 p.m.

On Sunday, the two teams with one loss each meet in an elimination game at 10 a.m. The final is set for 2 p.m. with a second game, if necessary, at 8 p.m.

Bates Blank Molsons In Softball Opener

VANCOUVER (CP) — Victoria Bates blanked Victoria Molsons, 7-0, Friday night in the men's British Columbia Open Softball tournament to select a B.C. team for the Canadian Summer Games in Halifax in August.

In an earlier game, Vancouver Merchants downed North Vancouver City, 8-3. Later Vancouver Johnstons edged Vancouver Molsons, 3-0.

It was no contest after the first inning in the game between the two Victoria clubs, when Jim Moody led off with a bunt single, took second on a sacrifice and went to third and home on successive wild pitches.

In three times at bat, Moody got on base three times with base hits, scored three runs and drove in two others.

Bates' big inning came in the fourth with a lead-off triple by Lyle Cornet, a single by Don Lancaster, a throwing error by catcher Jim Wilson, a walk to Roy St. Dennis and a two-run single by Moody.

Gordie Huston struck out four and walked one in posting an easy shutout win.

In the first game today, Trail was to play Nanaimo. Merchants were to meet Vancouver Eldorados and Victoria Molsons were to play Vancouver City.

Later Vancouver M and M is scheduled to play Bates and North Vancouver City plays the loser of the Nanaimo-Trail game.

Esquimalt Club Debuts in Y Meet

A beginning and possibly, an end.

These are two of the features at the Y-M-YCA International track and field meet at Centennial Stadium which started with age-class heats last night and concludes today with heats starting at 10 a.m. and, with the exception of a few field events, open finals at 6:30 p.m.

FIRST MEET FOR CLUB

The beginning is a small one with nine members of the newly-formed Esquimalt Track Club of coach Ron Bowker making their first official appearance in a meet under that affiliation.

The end has larger implications at the moment.

This meet may mark the end of the brilliant career of United States Olympic star Tommie Smith, who has had at least a share in almost every running record up to 440 yards or 400 metres.

OUTSTANDING FIELDS

The 200-metre winner at the Mexican Olympics is turning his interest to football and is currently discussing terms with Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

If he doesn't get the deal he wants there, he is considering a move to the Canadian Football League.

With both men's and women's sprints and middle distances attracting outstanding fields from the Pacific Northwest region, the meet was already assured of success in the competitive viewpoint.

And recent entries have strengthened the field portion.

Adding spice to the pole vault, which starts at 5:00, are Curt Heasaw of Spokane Track Club and Mark Edman of Tacoma Track Club.

Heasaw was the recent champion in the NAA small college championships in Montana with a 16-foot, one-inch vault, three inches better than Edman's standard.

Their chief opposition is likely to come from Rick Burrows of Vancouver Olympic Club, who is in the 15-foot region.

Perhaps the busiest competitor in the meet will be Tacoma's Steve Gough, a finalist in the United States' Olympic trials last summer.

Gough has cleared six feet, eight inches.

Langley's Debbie Brill, who holds the world record in the high jump for 15-year-olds with a mark of five feet, nine and one-quarter inches, is another young star in the meet.

within a foot of Gough's 50'2" and high-jumper Will Wedman of Vancouver, who will be trying again to better seven feet.

Gough has cleared six feet, eight inches.

Langley's Debbie Brill, who holds the world record in the high jump for 15-year-olds with a mark of five feet, nine and one-quarter inches, is another young star in the meet.

Weslock Shares Golf Lead Wakeham Tied for Fourth

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — A veteran amateur and unemployed professional are tied for the lead going into today's final round of the Ontario Open golf championship.

Nick Weslock of Brantford, Ont., a six-time Ontario open winner with 32 years of competitive golf behind him, fired a four-under-par 68 Friday to go with an opening-round 70 for a 36-hole total of 138. Phil Giroux of Cartierville, Que., whose golf course was sold from under him, shot his second consecutive 69 for a 138 total.

Trailing by two strokes is Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, a veteran of the United States professional tour, with 70-70-140.

Par on the 6801-yard St. Catharines Golf and Country Club course is 36-72.

Three players are tied at 142. Ken Fulton of Richelieu, Que., had 72-70-142. Bill Wakeham of Victoria, had the same scores, and defending champion Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont. had 75-67-142.

Cowan's 67 Friday was the best round in the tournament's first two days. He made the turn one under par, then blazed around the back side in four under, including an eagle three on the 518-yard 18th.

RAIN AIDS GREENS

After several hours of rain, which ended at mid-morning, the course was springy-soft, and the greens holding well.

"You could throw a wedge shot right at the pin," Weslock said. "If your game was under control, you could really do things with the ball."

Weslock lost a shot to par on the 17th when his drive landed in a crack between two strips of sod in front of the green. The area was not marked as ground under repair, so he had to play the ball as it lay. Giroux lost a stroke to par on the 18th when he pulled his drive to the left and was forced to play his second under a tree.

Giroux still is indefinite about his plans since losing his club professional's job. He would like to play the rest of the Canadian tour, then attend the PGA winter school in Florida to earn a U.S. tour playing card.

Cowan left himself only a five-foot putt for his eagle, and putted five times for birdies during his round.

The cut to the low 60 and ties was 152 and 64 players survived. One who just made it was amateur John Sullivan of Burlington, who was among the leaders after one round with a 71, his best competitive score ever. He came back to earth Friday with an 81 for a 152 total.

B.C. Athletes Named To Represent Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Eight athletes, including five from British Columbia, have been named to represent Canada in the United States national track and field championships, June 28-29 at Miami, Fla.

Half of the men's team, chosen by the Canadian Track and Field Association, will enter distance races. Toronto's Dave Ellis and Bob Finlay, along with Gerry Tighe and Norm Terrie, both of Vancouver, will compete in the three-mile and six-mile runs.

Other members are javelin-thrower Stuart Hunnington of Vancouver, long-jumper Barry Johnson of Trail, hammer-thrower Tony Tenelch, also of Trail and Montreal long-jumper Michel Charland.

Port Alberni Tops King's

Port Alberni Barclays defeated Victoria King's Hotel, 13-10, Thursday in Vancouver Island Senior Lacrosse League play at Memorial Arena.

Five power-play goals in the second period gave the Barclays a 10-7 second-period margin after Victoria had held a 4-3 advantage after the first.

Bob Jones led the winners with five goals. Brent Atkins, with four, Brian Van Horne, with three, and Brian Hugo completed the Port Alberni scoring.

Owen Richman led the Kings with four goals. Jerry Bains and Bruce Kellow had two each while Paul Johns and Fred Moulson scored one goal each.

Aussies Gain Tennis Final

LONDON (AP) — Dennis Ralston, last United States hope in the London grass courts tennis championship at Queen's Club, uncorked a flurry of double faults and bowed out 6-2, 3-6, 8-6 to Australia's Fred Stolle in the semi-finals Friday.

With Wimbledon only three days away, Rod Laver, reigning Wimbledon champion, was defeated 6-4, 6-4 by fellow Australian pro John Newcombe.

Stolle and Newcombe will meet in the final today for the first prize of $1,200.

Rams Acquire Karl Sweetan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams announced Thursday they have acquired quarterback Karl Sweetan, who backed up regular Bill Kümer with New Orleans Saints last year, in exchange for two National Football League draft choices.

Sweetan, 26, 6-1 and 205 pounds from Wake Forest, has been in the NFL since 1966 after a year with Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

Kuhn Gives Baseball Owners Clean Bill of Stocks Health

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball got out of the gambling business in Las Vegas Friday in a multi-million-dollar shuffle that forced a top casino executive to quit as an official of the Atlanta Braves.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said three other baseball figures, including Braves president William C. Bartholomay and Oakland Athletics owner Charles O. Finley, would sell their Las Vegas stock.

Delbert W. Coleman, who has $18 million invested in Las Vegas, is leaving the Braves' board of directors, Kuhn said.

NO WRONGDOINGS
The commissioner, announcing the settlement after a month's probe of gambling ties, said he found "no question of any wrongdoing or impropriety" by the baseball owners.

"I am gratified," said Bartholomay, one of two Braves executives who is resigning from the board of Coleman's firm.

"It's a beautiful ending," said Finley.

Coleman, head of the Parvins-Dohrmann Co. which owns three Las Vegas casinos, will keep his stock in the Braves, Kuhn said.

WILL RESIGN BOARD
But Bartholomay and another Braves' director, John J. Louis, will resign from the Parvins-Dohrmann board.

Finley would not comment on whether he would get rid of the additional stock that he previously said he holds in Del E. Webb Corp., which owns other Las Vegas casinos. Kuhn, asked if Finley would sell, said "no," without elaboration.

The baseball commissioner said all of the owners' moves concerning Parvins-Dohrmann were volunteered after the Associated Press disclosed the gambling stock ties last month.

ACTED IN GOOD FAITH
"At no time did I issue any ultimatum or order," Kuhn said.

Kuhn said all four baseball executives had made "a good faith investment" in Las Vegas and stressed that, "from the vanage point of baseball, there was no question of any wrongdoing or impropriety by Finley, Bartholomay, Louis or Coleman."

OWNS OTHER FIRM
Coleman led a takeover of the Parvins-Dohrmann Co. last fall and nominated Bartholomay and Louis to join him on the board of directors. The firm owns the Stardust, Fremont and Aladdin hotels and casinos.

Coleman is sole owner of another firm which rents and operates the casinos in two of the hotels. The third casino is run by a subsidiary of the parent company.

Finley will be selling 30,000 shares of Parvins-Dohrmann valued at about $2,700,000. Bartholomay and Louis have smaller holdings of only 2,000 shares each.

Coleman controls 207,000 shares of Parvins-Dohrmann worth nearly $18,000,000. He is also listed in stock records as controlling 46,000 voting certificates in Atlanta Braves Baseball Club, Inc., the same number held by Bartholomay and Louis.

Matthews played 10 years in the WHL with New Westminster Royals, Portland Buckaroos and Vancouver Canucks, retiring in 1964.

He coached Coquitlam Comets of the West Coast Junior Hockey League for the last three years.

Matthews To Coach Centennials

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ron Matthews, former Western Hockey League all-star defenseman, has been named coach of Vancouver Centennials, newest entry in the British Columbia Junior A Hockey League.

Matthews played 10 years in the WHL with New Westminster Royals, Portland Buckaroos and Vancouver Canucks, retiring in 1964.

He coached Coquitlam Comets of the West Coast Junior Hockey League for the last three years.

Other teams in the league are Vernon, Kelowna, Kamloops, Penticton, Victoria and New Westminster.

A two week car ride is not a vacation.

A vacation should be a vacation. It shouldn't mean having to battle traffic. Or wasting a lot of vacation time getting to a spot. Or worrying about accommodations. Or having to fight your way through a crowded beach.

Instead, you should be able to completely relax.

That's why CP Air suggests Hawaii or Mexico for this summer's vacation. Both places are uniquely different from anything you've ever known: You can explore thousands of years of history. You can surf. See a bullfight.

Travel with CPAir is a global affair.

So this year have one. In Hawaii or Mexico. For about the same kind of money.

Taste exotic foods. Enjoy scenery you never knew existed. And here's the best part. You can do all this for far less than you expected. For example, you can spend 8 glorious days in Hawaii for just $108.50* plus air fare. Or for $96.25** plus air fare, you can have six golden days in Mexico City, Cuernavaca and Taxco.

For the full story on CP Air's summertime tours, send in our coupon. It will tell you how CP Air can make this summer's travel dollars go a lot further.

Clinic Needs New Blood

The Red Cross blood donor service will seek 725 pints in a four-day series of clinics next week.

Clinics will be held at Red Cross House, 1040 Fort, from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday and Tuesday; at the Legislative Buildings from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday and from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday; and at HMC Dockyard officer cadet school gymnasium from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday.

August Picked

Tsartlip Festival Changed

The Tsartlip Indian Festival, with its war canoe races and salmon barbecue will be held in August this year, and it is hoped to make the event a major tourist attraction, Tsartlip chief Philip Paul said Thursday.

In previous years the festival has been held over the Victoria Day holiday and has suffered from competition with other events and the uncertainty of the May weather.

"Victoria doesn't have anything to attract tourists in August," Mr. Paul said. "It's time we added something besides scenery."

The festival will coincide with Chief Thunderbird Memorial Day, and will be held Aug 9 and 10.

An Indian Princess will be chosen to reign over the festival. Festival officers are Samuel Sam, chairman; Caroline Elliott, secretary; and Charles Elliott, treasurer.

Committee members are Harry Dick, Philip Paul, Rev. William Mudge, Ken Sampson, Paulette and Audrey Sampson, Freda Cooper, Manny Cooper, Fraser Smith, Gregory Sam, Skip Sam, Thomas Sampson, Henry Smith, John Sampson and Jim Fisher.

HELSINKI, Finland — It's summer now in Finland. The lakes and seas have unfrozen. Even in the heart of Helsinki there's a smell of pine and birch leaves. The nights now are only a few hours of dark.

Still not much Western tourist traffic into Finland — Finnair is trying to step it up with a new New York-Helsinki flight. (It stops at Amsterdam and Copenhagen; buy cigarettes at the Amsterdam free port during the stop. You'll pay 60 cents a package in Finland.)

This flight runs daily except Sunday. Possibly extra good on food and service since it's new. Finnair anxious to get some of the business now going to bigger SAS.

Unable to get into Russia which was too bad because this is Finnair's cup of vodka. They are right on the edge — you can walk across the frozen sea to Russia in winter.

Tried to get visa into nearby Estonia for a day. But a pretty girl at the Russian office said: "It usually takes 10 days."

Helsinki is less "Western" than other Scandinavian capitals. Finnish language has no relation to the Viking countries — sounds like Japanese spoken by Italians.

There is little modern or hip culture. A good meeting place for young people is Richard's Pub. Workers. Journalists. Girl students in Marimekko mini-skirts. Excellent Finnish beer on tap. (One rock group from Romania in town. Not so good.)

Dinners are somewhat incendiary if you go for the cold smoked reindeer meat, smoked fish, Russian caviar. Finnish vodka would blow a safe. After dinner drink is mesimarja — it's made from Arctic bramble, a sweetish taste.

Good hotels at $10 to $15. A sleeper is the lovely lake country outside the capital. Elegant hotel mansion — Heikkinen Manor near Porvoo. And low priced camping sites and cabins. Many rooms for rent in farmhouses.

What's wrong with it? No place for people looking for night life or "action." Helsinki at night is stately — formal dress at Kaivohuone restaurant in the embassy district.

This is not a destination, rather an extension of a European trip. Something different for travellers in the Scandinavian countries. And a jump-off for Russia. Big Russian train pulls in and out from Moscow each day. Boat excursions go across the gulf to Estonia. And Finnair flies all of Russia that the Russian let you see.

"For two students spending some time (without a car) in Scandinavia, we'd like to meet other young people..."

Good spot in Helsinki is Hise. A student club with go-go dancing and cheap price for Finnish wine. Budapest for the gypsy violins.

Copenhagen's the town. The Tivoli. Open-faced sandwiches. Danish beer and Danish girls. I got into Copenhagen late without a reservation which was a piece of luck. The tourist office put me into a school dormitory — turned over to tourists during the summer. Price $2 a day. There's a student Club — ask

Names In the News

HOLLYWOOD — Secretary Joy March, 20, kept her cash reserve hidden in a black box in her apartment, until a burglar broke in last month and took the $150 she had at the time.

So she put a note in the box reading, "To hell with you," hid $90 in a vase and put box and vase on the mantel. Now, a burglar has stolen the vase and $90 and left this note in their place: "To hell with you, too."

WASHINGTON — Government sources said former child star Shirley Temple Black is one of several candidates for the $28,000 a year post of deputy assistant secretary of state for education and cultural affairs. Her husband, George, has been proposed for an unspecified job of comparable rank.

TORONTO — Benchers of the Law Society of Upper Canada decided to take no action against former provincial judge Lucien Kurata, removed from the bench May 1 after an inquiry into several allegations. The lack of action means he can practise as a lawyer in Ontario.

CANOSA, Italy — Police arrested Antonio Metta, 54, for keeping father-in-law Michele Di Molfetta, 82, locked in a cellar for five years after they signed their pensions over to him.

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau said he has asked Lester Pearson to represent him at the funeral of Earl Alexander of Tunis next Tuesday at Windsor, England. Canada will be officially represented by Charles Ritchie, Canadian high commissioner in London, and Gen. Jean Allard, chief of the defence staff.

TORONTO — Ontario Supreme Court Justice Edson Haines ordered Jordan House, a tavern near Beamsville, Ont., to pay $19,435 to John Menow, 42. He was ejected from the premises while drunk and hit by a car on a nearby highway as he walked home, losing a leg. The judge said the tavern showed no concern for Menow's safety.

ATHENS, Texas — Tycoon Clint Murchison, estimated to be worth $500,000,000, died at 74. His interests included oil, life insurance, publishing, ranches, candy, fishing tackle, chemicals and many other business fields.

SANTA MONICA — Natalie Talmadge, silent screen star and one of three glamorous sisters, died at 70. She was once married to Busby Keaton.

Black

Sister Norma died in 1957 while Constance survives.

LOS ANGELES — Veteran movie producer Selig Seligman, a prosecutor at the Nuremberg war crimes trials, died at 55.

Funds-Vote Apathy Worrying City Hall

By PAT MURPHY

An $8,588,000 "Plan for Progress" will go before Victoria ratepayers June 28 and city hall officials are concerned that there doesn't seem to be the interest there should be.

City Manager Dennis Young said Friday he hasn't heard anything against the capital budget program but not much controversy — and controversy means interest.

The referendum will authorize borrowings of $4,241,000 for roads and public works, $1,513,000 for off-street parking buildings, $1,033,000 for parks and beautification, $1,151,000 for housing and urban renewal, and $650,000 for fire prevention and protection.

Voting will take place from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. at five polling stations, the Senior Citizens' Centre in Centennial Square, Goodwill Enterprises, 220 Bay; James Bay elementary school, Simcoe and Oswego streets; Sir James Douglas elementary school, Thurlow Street and Oaklands elementary school, 2627 Belmont.

Eligible to vote are 17,939 owner-electors and, in order to pass, the borrowing bylaw must have a 60 per cent majority.

The capital expenditure program is a plan to enable the city to spread financing, construction and replacement of certain public works over the period from 1969 to 1973.

Work projects are recommended by each city hall department and the whole considered and fitted into a system of priorities. The final plan must be approved by council.

SEWERAGE WORK

Included in the projects to be tackled by the city are improvement of part of the city's sewerage systems and development and extension of the street system.

Additional playing fields, tennis courts and change rooms will be provided in major parks and a sports pavilion and recreation building in Beacon Hill Park.

MORE PARKING

The McPherson Playhouse and Memorial Arena will be improved and two new off-street parking buildings built in the downtown area.

Two firehalls will be relocated and a fire training centre built. Reconstruction of the public works yard will take place and grants made for beautification and urban renewal.

Mr. Young said approval of the plan must be given if the city is to maintain its forward thrust. He recalled the first capital budget plan in 1964 was passed with a 78.7 per cent majority and hoped the same would occur next Saturday.

No Crisis Yet, But ...

Use of Water Still Too High

Water consumption has been ranging around the 35,000,000-gallons-a-day mark — and that's not good, Chief Water District Commissioner Ronald Upward said Friday.

It was pretty obvious, he added, that not everybody was obeying the regulations. There had been a perceptible drop since they were put in force but it was obvious that not all were co-operating.

Still, there was no crisis and would not be one for at least a month, Mr. Upward said.

Meanwhile, the Cumulus, the Swedish ship carrying the 275 tons of steel from which pipe is to be fabricated, was somewhere between San Francisco and Portland.

She was not due in Vancouver until June 27, Mr. Upward said. When it docks, the steel will be loaded on a scow and hauled to Victoria where Victoria Machinery Depot men build the vital length of pipeline.

It will be installed between Sooke Lake and the end of the Sooke-Goldstream tunnel which can be put in use in an emergency despite the fact that it is not completely cement-lined.

In the meantime, the water commissioner is appealing to users not to cheat and to follow the regulations — for their own good.

Courtroom Parade

Shoving Police Costs $100

Harold Stevens, 27, of 651 Constance, was fined $100 in Central Magistrate's Court Friday for obstructing a police officer June 6.

Court heard evidence that Esquimalt Police Constable James Askew was shoved against a door by Stevens after he and another policeman entered the accused's apartment to enquire about an apparently injured woman lying inside the open door.

Stevens was busy arguing with another man across the threshold and did not answer Constable Askew's questions. Magistrate William Ostler said the police were not trespassing and it was "their clear duty" to try to help the woman.

Jay Small, 19, of 1112 McKenzie, was given one day in jail and fined $500 for possession of marijuana. He was convicted at an earlier hearing and was sentenced Friday after the court's receipt of a pre-sentence report.

Magistrate Ostler said the report was "very favorable" and Small is not "an apologist for the drug cult." His contact with drugs has been "minimal" and he has a good work record, the magistrate said. The fine is to be paid expressly out of Jay's personal earnings.

Randy Profit, 20 of 1814 Lillian was sentenced to one day in jail for possession of stolen goods.

Michael Wayne Nebesunk, no fixed address, was sentenced to three months in prison after he pleaded guilty to escaping custody on June 19 from the Albert Head special army camp.

United Appeal's Target $694,000 This Year

BY DON GAIN

The United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal target for this year, $694,000, was announced Friday at a noon meeting of the board of directors of the Community Chest of Greater Victoria.

The target was decided after the budget committee spent hours going over budgets submitted by the 23

Community Chest member agencies and the Red Cross, L. J. Glassford, president of the chest, said, after the meeting.

Pruned from the budgets was $150,000, Mr. Glassford said.

"The agencies won't be able to accomplish as much as they had hoped, but we have pared their budgets to the bone," he added.

"We now are hoping that the citizens of Greater Victoria will come forward and contribute to those less fortunate than themselves," he said.

This year's target is up six per cent over last year's goal of $655,000. Because the 1968 target was not met, this year's represents an increase of 11 per cent over the actual amount raised last year.

Campaign chairman Peter Darling said six agencies are within $400 of their last year's budgets and one agency is getting less.

"The others are up in varying amounts. The handicapped children's clinic budget is up, due to its new facilities at Gordon Head," Mr. Darling said he planned a campaign which will be "fresh and fast," one designed to keep up the enthusiasm of the canvassers as well as the public.

Last year's campaign started in June and ran until December.

"We will concentrate on September and October," he said, "and hope to get it over with as quickly as possible."

Mr. Darling announced the appointment of Mrs. Bonner Aust as chairman of a full-time public information committee.

***

Mrs. Aust was chairman of the residential campaign last year. Taking over in that capacity is Mrs. S. J. Cunliffe. Recruitment of chairmen in the business community is going very favorably, Mr. Darling said.

"We are hoping that Greater Victorians will follow the fair-share way of contributing this year. It amounts to a contribution of one hour's pay per month. With professional people, a fair share is one per cent of salary."

He said that, even though this year's target is $74,000 above what was raised last year, fair-share contributions would provide for the Community Chest three times what is needed, if everybody gave in that way.

***

Chest agencies spend $3 in Greater Victoria for each $1 raised by the United Appeal fund drive, he said, because the agencies also receive substantial grants from governments, fees, membership dues and special bequests.

Buccaneers' Queen

Joanne Sarsiat, Esquimalt's Buccaneer Queen, will reign today over municipality's Buccaneer Day. Pancake breakfast at 7 a.m. in Esquimalt Sports Centre opens celebrations including salmon barbeque, band and drill team contest, dance, parade. Joanne, 16, daughter of Esquimalt police chief Earl Sarsiat, was crowned Friday by Esquimalt Mayor Ray Bryant. (William A. Boucher)

Summer: Mid Or Beginning?

By NANCY BROWN

There'll be a chill in the air over Vancouver Island this morning as the days start to shorten following midsummer, which arrived at precisely 6:55 a.m. today.

North Americans will probably insist that June 21 is the first day of summer, but the English immigrant believes once the longest day has passed so has midsummer.

Even the weather office is offering collaboration with a weather forecast of generally cloudy conditions this morning.

However, Islanders will be able to make the most of the time before fall by heading for the beaches in the afternoon, as clouds are expected to clear by midday.

In Victoria winds will continue strong, emphasizing the end of last week's scorching heat when a trough brought the hot dry weather straight up from Nevada.

From Wednesday until this morning the sun has risen at 5:11 a.m., setting at 9:19 p.m. On Sunday the sunlight hours will be one minute shorter with the sun rising at 5:12 a.m.

Car Testing Extension Decided on Monday

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson says a decision will be made Monday on whether to extend the deadline for compulsory motor vehicle testing in Greater Victoria.

The attorney-general said late Friday he had received no recommendation on whether the July 1 deadline established several months ago should remain in effect or whether a further extension was needed.

The government's compulsory motor vehicle testing program, which is to be extended later throughout B.C., was originally intended to have come into effect here after an experimental period last Jan. 1. It was postponed because the volume of vehicles could not be handled in the time allotted.

If the July 1 deadline is confirmed Monday it will mean all vehicles and trailers without valid stickers are liable to a $10 minimum penalty.

B.C. Servants Excluded In Rights Act

By DIANE JANOWSKI

A government official agreed Friday with a claim B.C. government employees have been making for several years.

"There seem to be two kinds of citizens here," said Jack Sherlock, director of the B.C. Human Rights Commission.

"SECOND-CLASS"

"Unless specifically stated, servants of the Crown are not included," he said.

"If this is true," a union official said, "it only proves what we have been saying for years — civil servants are second-class citizens in the eyes of the government."

Norman Thorner, business agent for the marine branch of the B.C. government, added "This is a direct slap in the face for government employees."

TAXPAYERS

"Are they not citizens of B.C.? Are they not taxpayers?" He asked why government employees should be excluded from the "good life."

"We don't like this second-class status," he said.

Attorney-general Leslie Peterson said it was true the civil servants were not covered by the act, and said there will be no amendment to correct this.

NO DISCRIMINATION

"There's no need for that," he said. "There will be no discrimination of that sort as long as I'm here."

The attorney-general said there have been no instances of discrimination in government hiring.

"There are people of all races and creeds working in the civil service. The government will not tolerate discrimination."

ANOTHER LOOK

"To date there have been no differences of opinion with the government over this," said Mr. Thorner, "but if the Human Rights Act exclusion of B.C. then there is something wrong with it and we'd better take another look at it."

Mr. Sherlock said it would seem the government is free to discriminate in any way it might choose.

Attorney-General Peterson said the B.C. ferries requirement that employees must be Canadian citizens or British subjects was not discriminatory because citizenship was a common requirement for government personnel.

PAPERS WARNED

"You have to be a Canadian citizen to be a member of Parliament," he said.

He warned newspapers to watch for discriminatory classified ads.

"We're not looking to prosecute," he said. "It's up to the news media to do a little policing on their own."

"We have no intention of breaking the law," said Hector Alexander, advertising director of Victoria Press, "but we have no way of telling if restrictive clauses in the ads are actually conditions of employment."

ANSWER 'NO'

When asked if his department would be issuing specific directives to help people enforce the Act, the attorney-general said: "The answer is no."

Commission director Sherlock said the Commission's main purpose was to educate people to the Act rather than prosecute.

The B.C. ferries go to Chinese Canadian applicants.

"I suppose you could say there is an unwritten rule saying Chinese work in the galleys," said A. G. Richardson, chief personnel officer.

"A lot of Chinese are qualified for this work and it has been the practice to employ them."

"It's an area where the Chinese population can be employed."

ANY MAY APPLY

Mr. Richardson noted that any qualified person may apply for the positions and said: "I think there's the odd one (non-Chinese-Canadian) working here and there in the galleys."

He admitted, however, that such persons were really busboys or stewards who had been called into temporarily replace an absent galley crew member.

The Human Rights Commission will meet in the Victoria Law Courts Aug. 19 to consider complaints of citizens under the newly-proclaimed law.

PART OF SERIES

The hearings are part of a series to be held in the months of July and August, beginning in Kelowna, July 22, moving to Creston July 24, and Prince George, Aug. 5.

The Human Rights Commission is composed of the same members as the industrial relations board which on those dates will hear submissions regarding the revision of minimum wage orders.

Both the commission and the board are headed by Deputy Labor Minister William Sands.

Commission Blamed For Ministrike Lag

By DON COLLINS

Organized labor in Victoria has accused the B.C. Mediation Commission of inaction in the city's seven-month-old ministrike and may soon ask Labor Minister Peterson to step into the picture.

Jack Groves, president of the 13,000-member Victoria Labor Council, has been meeting behind the scenes with other union officials in an attempt to find a solution for the dispute which began last Nov. 27 at Hy-Fidelity Photos, 750 Discovery.

STRATEGY MEETINGS

The strike, for a first contract between the company and Teamsters Union, involves eight workers. It followed what is believed to have been the smallest government-supervised strike vote in B.C. Only three ballots were cast.

After Friday's strategy meetings Mr. Groves said: "We are seriously considering approaching Peterson." (Labor Minister Leslie Peterson.)

"The feeling is that the minister of labor should be concerning himself with this strike which has been allowed to go on for seven months."

MEDIATION OFFICER

He said it was obvious the mediation commission wasn't doing what it should be doing about settlement.

Mr. Groves said a mediation officer had entered the picture last January at the request of the Teamsters after being asked that the union was ready to sit down and negotiate at any time.

Fire Too Close For Comfort

Residents along Mayfair Drive lived through some tense moments Friday afternoon as a grass fire raged across six acres on the west side of Mount Tolmie and came dangerously close to their homes.

Winds of up to 30 miles an hour fanned the flames and huge billows of smoke swirled skyward. The smoke hampered Saanich firemen who fought the blaze for more than an hour before bringing it under control.

Four fire trucks attended in an effort to confine the blaze to the grass area, but in spite of the firemen's efforts, the flames came to within 20 feet of the property of Donald Robbins of 3490 Mayfair Drive.

"It was a little too close for comfort," said Mr. Robbins casting a weary look at the furniture assembled on his front lawn.

"We had a whole bunch of kids help us carry the furniture out. They were just great, and it certainly looked like our house would go up in flames."

All shrubs, flowers and numerous fruit trees in his back yard were destroyed by the fire.

"But I guess we have to be grateful. At least we were able to keep our house," he said.

Doug Broadland, 15, of 3556 Richmond was busy extinguishing smoldering grass patches with his own equipment.

"I'm glad I could help a bit," he said.

The case was dropped without a report, he said, when someone representing the company told the officer the climate wasn't right yet for settlement.

"That's five months ago and there has been no attempt by either the commission or the company to settle this issue since," Mr. Groves said.

LABOR COUNCIL

The labor council tried to act as mediator in the beginning, but was unsuccessful.

Since then it has offered support to the strikers by joining in the picketing. But its attempt to effect a boycott of the company's photo developing service has been stopped by a Supreme Court injunction.

The Teamsters' Union contends that Hy-Fidelity is just another name for Morifree Munshaw Ltd., in Vancouver.

'AVENUE BLOCKED'

"Every avenue has been blocked to labor in its attempt to support the strike of this little group of people," Mr. Groves said. He said the business has been operated by "strikebreakers."

The criticism marks the second attack by labor on the mediation commission this month.

Far more severe was the suggestion June 11 by B.C. Federation of Labor secretary Ray Haynes that the commission resign.

Terrified Boy, 15, Gets Chance

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

A 15-year-old boy who spent a week in Colquitz jail awaiting sentence after being convicted of breaking and entering, told Central Magistrate's Court Friday that he kept to his cell in fear of homosexual inmates.

The boy, described by Magistrate William Ostler as a "sophisticated and experienced criminal" with a long record in juvenile court, was given his first and last chance in adult court — a suspended sentence of two years for four counts of breaking and entering and theft.

'LOVE-LETTER'

The boy took the witness stand before being sentenced and described his fears of being sexually assaulted by inmates of Colquitz jail, and read a love-letter written to him by one of the inmates.

He said he stayed as much as possible in his cell because "if they jumped me and tried anything I wouldn't have had a chance."

Magistrate Ostler met with counsel in his chambers and then the boy was sent into the witness box to give evidence. He appeared to be crying during part of his testimony.

The boy said there was one man in the jail who more or less protected him from the "advances" of homosexuals when he could.

He said he got two pork chops at his first meal in jail, and the inmates had told him this was arranged by "mother." He then began to receive letters and chocolate bars and was continually invited out into the jail yard.

There was a "small Frenchman" who often spoke to him in French, but the boy's friend refused to translate the comments. Asked by counsel what he was afraid of, the boy said "I guess you can call it sexual attack."

COULDN'T SEE

Under cross-examination, the boy said the guard, who watched over four floors, was stationed "around the corner" and could not see what took place in the cells.

The boy told court he wrote a request to see the probation officer but heard nothing further.

Questioned by Magistrate Ostler, the boy said he did not trust the guards because they "swore" as much as the inmates.

"They saw it happen anyhow. I don't see how they could miss it."

Both Magistrate Ostler and prosecutor John MacIntyre said they could not be certain whether the boy was telling the truth, because of a "history of lying."

The probation officer's report was "very negative," said Mr. MacIntyre.

THE LIES

"We know he lies," and this could change some of the weight given to his testimony about the jail experience, but "I suppose it's notorious that this sort of thing goes on in any institution," Mr. MacIntyre said.

However, "on the face of it, he lies and cheats and disregards other people's property. Now, in the eleventh hour, he supposedly repents..."

Magistrate Ostler said he has enough confidence in penal institutions to know that they would do "everything possible" to avoid allowing a boy to become involved in such behavior, but said he would give the boy "one chance" in adult court.

"You must understand it is your last chance... If you come back before me you can expect nothing but prison."

Ex-Troop Ship

Globe-Circling Liner Here Today

The globe-circling luxury ship SS President Roosevelt will steam into Victoria shortly after noon today to inaugurate cruise service to the city by American Presidential Lines.

The 622-foot liner will berth at Ogden Point with 400 passengers and more than 300 crew on her way back to San Francisco from a 13-day Alaska cruise.

The big APL passenger liners has visited Canadian waters. The Roosevelt was built in 1944 as a troop transport, the USS General W. P. Richardson. In 1949 she was modified to carry military dependents and renamed USS LaGuardia.

In 1956 she was converted for civilian use by the Matson Lines and renamed Lailani. American President Lines bought her in 1960 and she took her present name.

The ship will be greeted by a 130-foot banner trailing from a plane flying over the port and she will be escorted past the breakwater by a fireboat.

The dockside welcome will get underway about 1 p.m., with the Esquimalt Girls' Thunderbird Drum Corps and the Jerry Gosley Smile Show providing entertainment.

Passengers will have the afternoon for shopping and sightseeing. The ship sails at 8 p.m. for her home port.

Scottish singer Jock Dunbar will be there, accompanied by one or two pipers, to extend a musical goodbye.

The 18,000-ton liner will visit Victoria three more times this year and will initiate B.C.-Orient cruises with her July 5 sailing from Vancouver and her July 6 sailing from here.

Next winter and spring her owners plan a variety of cruise combinations from here to the Orient, some timed to take advantage of Japan's Expo 70 in Osaka.

TOPS Helps Take It Off

TORONTO (CP) — The population of Ontario is 54, 130½ pounds lighter than it was last year, thanks to the members of TOPS. That is the total 1968 weight loss for about 8,000 members in 168 chapters of Take Off Pounds Sensibly.

Their 1969 Ontario queen, Ruth Slack of Dresden, lost 95½ pounds. King Charles Shantz of Kitchener lost 134 pounds during 1968.

They are being crowned Saturday as the highlight of the two-day TOPS provincial meeting. The group is part of an international organization founded 21 years ago in Milwaukee. It works something like Alcoholics Anonymous, with weekly weigh-ins and a buddy system.

Mrs. Slack said in an interview that she has been dieting off and on ever since she was 12 years old. She weighed 238½ when she joined TOPS.

She goes to the Thamesville club with her friend, Margaret Lambkin, who lost 63 pounds. Mrs. Lambkin says she has gone from a size 24½ to size 10.

Her runner-up as queen Maree Graham of Kitchener, lost 92 pounds last year, is now down to 121½ from a start of 217.

You couldn't wear slacks. I put the weight on after I was married, I ate too much.

All the women interviewed said they were self-conscious, had little fun, and couldn't buy clothes because of over-weight.

Margaret Berridge of Markham says at 32½ her clothes had gone beyond the sizes offered off the rack. She has lost 100 pounds since August and wants to get down to 150.

Barbara Brullinger of Markham, convention chairman, explained that TOPS members are expected to go on diets recommended by their doctors. What TOPS does is give them encouragement to stay on them. Once they have achieved the weight loss they want, they may remain members as KOPS — Keep Off Pounds Sensible. If they backslide, they lose their KOPS standing and must start again.

LIMERICK (AP) — The battle between the fighting O'Malleys of Limerick was settled Friday in Ireland's national election. Desmond, the lawyer, won. Hilda, the widow, lost.

In the republic's complicated system of proportional representation voting, seven counts were needed before the victorious O'Malley emerged. The battle of the O'Malleys intrigued Irish voters almost more than the election itself.

Battle of the O'Malleys

Desmond Defeats Hilda

Dr. Hilda O'Malley, 41, is the blonde and attractive widow of Donagh O'Malley, who died last year while serving as minister of education.

The man who defeated her in the election is her cousin, Desmond O'Malley, 31.

Desmond created an uproar by claiming that Hilda had acted unfairly by describing herself as "widow" on the voting papers. Being a widow is usually regarded as a passport to success in Irish politics.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I attended a wedding last week which left me horribly depressed. Now another thing occurs to me. Was it legal?

The bride and groom both live in another city, but the wedding was held in the hometown of the bride. It was a church affair. The bride walked down the aisle on her father's arm. She looked like she'd been crying for a week. When they reached they altar the minister announced the groom was in the hospital, ill, and his cousin would serve as his proxy.

More Like Funeral

There were no felicitations or congratulations. The families wept all over each other and left the church. It was more like a funeral than a wedding. Please tell me if you have ever heard of such a thing and if the marriage is valid. — Vicksburg, Miss.

Dear Vick: Proxy marriages are legal in some states, but Mississippi is not one of them. (Neither is Illinois.) Obviously the bride believes she is married. Someone ought to acquaint her with the facts. And the minister as well.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 24 and have been married for two years. Last April I gave

The cousin came forward, stood by the bride and responded "I do" to all the questions. He then put the ring on her finger and the minister said, "I now pronounce you man and wife." They did not kiss at the close of the ceremony, which was quite a relief.

Get Help, Good Luck

If you think therapy would help, I'll go. Many thanks. — Nightmare Revisited.

Dear N.: Your anxieties are hanging on much too long. A competent therapist and a supportive husband should solve the problem. Go for help and good luck.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an MD who reads you often. Today I was dismayed to find you recommending cleaning fluid to remove gum from the body.

Unfortunately, carbon tetrachloride is still used in cleaning solutions. Absorption of this substance through the skin or by inhalation can cause serious liver and kidney damage. I hate to think that thousands of mothers who read your column will be scrubbing their kids with cleaning fluid. I hope you will issue an appropriate warning. — W.M., M.D.

Dear Dr.: My medical consultants say it would take a lot of scrubbing with cleaning fluid to damage the liver and kidneys. But why take a chance? So — all you mummies out there whose kids are stuck to the chairs, tricycles and piano benches — use olive oil or pure vegetable oil. Wrigley's and Leaf brand agree it is the safest gum remover.

Business Women Install Slate

Mrs. Kae Fleming was installed as president of the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club following the June dinner meeting.

Provincial president Miss Ruth Adams installed the new executive, using as her theme the Circle of Friendship. Other officers installed were Miss Barbara Miskiman, immediate past president; Mrs. Sally Hamill and Mrs. Suzanne Dearman, first and second vice-presidents; Mrs. Bert Crerar and Mrs. June Smith, recording and corresponding secretaries, and Mrs. Mable Dean, treasurer.

Mrs. Winnifred Bath, publicity; Mrs. Edyth Forsyth, finance; Mrs. Bernice Harvey, public affairs; Mrs. Pat Lakin, resolutions and by-laws; Mrs. Bessie Ward, federation promotion; Miss Ella Brett, newsletter editor; Miss Minnie Beveridge, archivist; Mrs. Dearman, international affairs and personal development.

Mrs. Mae Harrison and Mrs. Phoebe Stevenson were initiated into the club by Miss Adams.

Miss Isa Gerrie of the Edinburgh Club was a dinner guest.

Reports of the provincial conference held recently at Williams Lake were given and plans were made for the international picnic Sept. 14.

The sun was shining for the Women's Auxiliary to the Veterans' Hospital when the group held the annual Dogwood Festival Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. John Nicholson, wife of the lieutenant-governor, graciously opened the affair being introduced by Mrs. Henry Jarvis. Mrs. S. C. Laudall, president, gave Mrs. Nicholson an orchid corsage. Stalls were set around the beautiful grounds and did a thriving business all afternoon. At the end $1,300 had been collected.

Tea was served on the shade side of the lawn in front of Red Cross Lodge and the

Nine-Foot Mufflers High Style

NEW YORK (CP)—What can be as long as nine feet and have the latest fashion status?

It's your scarf-stole-muffler, or you name it.

This is most evident at the fall showings this week by the New York Couture Business Council, attended by more than 200 fashion writers.

Last spring, scarves made accessory news but they were the normal, smallish squares, usually prints, and were used as a neckline fill-in, a kerchief anchored to your costume by a pin or even tied on a bare arm as a fun accent. A few were long enough to serve as a sash-belt.

This season, however, scarves have become the important accessory. Elongated, they circle the neck and drape down the back, practically to the ground. They are loosely knitted to be worn with a knit pants suit, gaily printed in silk and fluttering over the shoulder of a smart suit or even heavy satin with a ball gown. Some of these new scarves are flowing lengths in the Isadora Duncan tradition. Others are wide, long and deeply fringed.

The new scarves are for every age group, as well as being in every fabric. The firm of Originals uses scarves extensively to complement coats. One black wool coat practically ground-trailed a long, jersey scarf in horizontal bands of hot pink, green and black. An oversized scarf was even added to a maxi-length black Melton coat. Junior Sophisticates wedded a grey flannel coat-dress with a white crepe scarf, folded once to lie flat down the front. And Abe Schrader showed a three-piece costume of a jumper and matching scarf in a brown-and-white overcheck wool and a white silk shirt.

These are for the fashionable sophisticates. For the back-to-school set, Sears likes long, lank, skinny knit scarves and tight, eyelet-worn knit hats, to accompany everything from vested skirt and turtle sweater to tunic with pants.

The scarf-muffler also has invaded fur fashions. In the Emba mink collection, a natural white mink coat was contrasted by a long dark ranch mink scarf. A black mink coat added a matching scarf lined and fringed in red leather. Other mink stoles included one fringed with matching tails and another in an all-over diamond pattern of light and dark skins.

Probably the next most important accent is the belt. A shaped wool dress can take on a tailored look with the addition of a wide leather belt in matching or contrasting color. The same dress can go out elegantly after five with a handsome jeweled belt.

Belts range in size from narrow to extremely wide, with some crushed leathers, too. And belts this season are often closely allied to costume jewelry. Chains and pearl ropes can be entwined with a fabric belt to give a new look to a dress or even a late-day suit.

In costume jewelry itself, the fall news is in the return of pearls, if pearls can ever be said to have dropped out of fashion. Mostly the pearls are ropes, in single or double strands. Monet is also showing gold-colored chains in all lengths, even to a layered look of multi strands within longer strands, in keeping with the new layered look in clothes.

Interesting, for a different way to wear chains, is the body arrangement. Slip-skin chains from neck under your arms and fasten them on your bosom with a pin. This has a harness look. Joseph Love even included this harness effect with some of his children's clothes. So age is not important.

Tan Enhanced

By MARY SUE MILLER

Memo to tan fans: As your color develops, be sure your makeup keeps pace. Switch from cool spring to warm summer shades.

To enhance a tan, cosmetic colors must be strong but subtly applied. New shades, designed to do the job, are a natural extension of a healthy, clear, sun-kissed skin.

The main emphasis is on lipstick and eye-shadow. Lipsticks are based on terra cotta and sweetened with tones of ripe apricot or golden persimmon.

Foundations, newsy in stick and gel forms, fit your color like the sheersheet second skin. A dewy skin with an inner glow!

You may be sure the effect stands the scrutiny of the brightest sun day. Could be, though, it should not stop at the chin.

As needed, the use of body makeup on bare legs and bare backs is a beautywise gambit. No amount of tan hides dark discolorations and spider veins. But cream or liquid cover cosmetics provide convincing camouflage.

Deaths Lagging Behind Births

WASHINGTON (AP)—World population is growing at the rate of 2.2 persons per second or more than 1,300,000 persons a week, the Population Reference Bureau reports. On the average, 3.9 persons are being born every second in 1969 while just under 1.7 die, a gain of 190,000 per day.

Youth on Move

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Children's Aid Society has announced it plans to set up its own medical clinic for transient youths.

Naden band played during the afternoon.

Mrs. Randall and Mrs. O. Lee were general conveners of the successful affair. Other conveners were Mrs. C.H. Willoughby, Mrs. C. Baker, Mrs. S. Carson, Mrs. P. Newman, Mrs. A. Gosse, Mrs. R. A. # Park Gospel Services Set

The 27th successive season of summer open-air gospel services in Beacon Hill Park will begin at 7 p.m. Sunday, June 29, and will continue in July and August.

The services are sponsored by the Victoria committee of the Christian Business Men's Committee International and are held at the Cameron bandshell, rain or shine.

The services are designed to appeal to those who like to worship in the open air during the warm summer evenings and to persons just enjoying the beauty and peace of the park, chairman Dan Webster said this week.

Each service will be conducted by a different church group. The first one June 29 will be arranged by Rev. Paul Hawkes of Glad Tidings Tabernacle. Major J. B. Wood of the Salvation Army, Citadel Corps, will arrange the service for July 6. Others to follow: July 13, First and Esquimalt Churches of the Nazarene with Rev. William Bahan and Rev. Norman Falk; July 20, Victoria Brethren Assemblies; July 27, Alliance Church with Rev. Ted Chapman.

Aug. 3, Shantymen's Christian Association with Rev. Percy Wills; Aug. 10, Central Baptist Church with Rev. John Moore; Aug. 17, Free Methodist Church and Evangelical Free Church with Rev. Ezra Seymour and Rev. Carl Klassen; Aug. 24, Victoria Camp, The Gideons, with Ed Friesen, president; Aug. 31, Emmanuel Baptist Church with Rev. Norman Archer.

The Living Language

Bishop Polishes Literary Image

Bishop Arthur Stockwood of Southwark, England, had some amusing comments on current language trends, as quoted in the spring issue of

The Log, published by The Columbia Coast Mission (Anglican Church of Canada). "I am no longer allowed to talk to my clergy," he said.

"Instead I have 'a dialogue' with them. If the talks last longer than an hour the dialogue is 'in depth'."

"If I question the avant-garde opinion of a junior curate, I do so because I am 'vulnerable' and feel 'threatened.' And should an argument develop between us, it leads either to an 'exposure situation' or a 'crunch'."

"If I ask my secretary to add up three columns of numbers she cannot give me the answer in a straightforward figure but has to insert the word 'overall' before the figure."

"If I am lucky enough to preach a sermon to confirmation candidates that makes sense, I am told that it is 'meaningful' and has improved the episcopal 'image.'"

"I used to have a domestic chaplain, but now he is my 'resource man.'"

"I like to think that I am reasonably tolerant in my religious views but I now have to be 'open ended.'"

"Well, sir, having indicated my 'area of concern and involvement' I must now start to 'phase out' this letter, otherwise my ideas will begin to 'jell' and form a 'bottle-neck.'"

"Of course, your younger readers will say that the trouble with me is that I am 'insecure' and am afraid of not 'being accepted.'"

"I am, sir, if you allow me to 'spell it out.' Rt. Rev. Arthur Stockwood, Bishop of Southwark."

Angel Moroni Statue Son of Expo Feature

Vancouver Island Mormons travelling to Montreal's Son of Expo this year will find of particular interest a statue of the angel Moroni.

The gold-leafed, fibreglass statue will stand atop the Mormon Pavilion, sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

It will be the third international exposition the angel has appeared at.

The same statue, clothed in angelic robes, was a prominent landmark at the New York World's Fair in 1964 and 1965 and again at last year's HemisFair '68 in San Antonio, Tex.

Moroni was a Christian prophet of the western Hemisphere who lived 14 centuries ago, according to Bernard Brockbank, a high official of the Mormon Church and manager of the exhibit.

Moroni is mentioned prominently in the Book of Mormon, scripture used by the Mormons as a complementary volume to the Bible.

The Latter-day Saints exhibit is in a spacious and attractive building used during Expo '67 by the Western Canadian provinces.

Theme of the exhibit, Mr. Brockbank said, is 'Man's Search for Happiness, which fits in with the overall exposition theme for this year, Man In His World.

A variety of art exhibits, statues and a motion picture telling of the church, its people and philosophy, make up the religious exhibit.

The displays include paintings depicting Jesus Christ among his followers both in the Old World of the Bible and in the western world after His resurrection as recorded in the Book of Mormon.

A corps of young guides, speaking both English and French, will escort visitors through the free exhibit, which is divided into three basic phases.

One is on the Book of Mormon, its origin and significance in the world today. Another deals with the beginnings of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the early 19th Century.

The third phase is a movie which answers for the viewer the questions, where did I come from, why am I here and where will I go after this life?

Mr. Brockbank estimates that as many as 1,500,000 visitors will attend the exhibit during the three-month run of the exposition.

Six 'Mermaids' Reach Finals

To Sons Treasured By City Churchman

Treasure is an interesting word. To one it might be a priceless jewel, to another his wealth, or his mother's Bible.

Students Join Service

Students of St. Andrew's School will participate in Sunday's eucharistic celebration at 9:30 a.m. in St. Andrew's Roman Catholic cathedral.

Grade VIII students will be leaving and the children who made their first communion with their parents in the last couple of weeks will make a solemn communion with their class. The other classes will participate in the singing.

Choir Sings On Radio

Clarendon high school choir, directed by Don Kyle, will sing on the weekly music program of Leonard Lythgoe of First United Church at 10:30 p.m. Sunday over CFMS (98.5 MC).

The choir has prepared Canadian and other folk songs, choral arrangements and madrigals for a summer trip to Montreal. They will sing them Sunday night.

Emanuel Baptist

Fund Raising Can Be Fun

By DON GAIN

They're never short of ideas at Emmanuel Baptist Church—ideas for fellowship and ideas for raising money for their new church.

One of their ideas last weekend raised more than $1,000 for the church fund, with more still to come.

"But it was first and foremost the fellowship that counted," said one of the organizers this week.

It was called a family mystery march and started at 8 a.m. Saturday on the new church property on Cedar Hill Cross Road.

The marchers were given clue slips for 15 checkpoints which took them the homes of church families in the Gordon Head-Ten Mile Point area.

By the time they had finished the mystery march they had been treated to everything from one smartie to fancy hors-d'oeuvres, sat on patios or in houses drinking coffee and other refreshments and had a lot of laughs.

There were five men who averaged a speed of five miles an hour, three of them grandfathers. There were several grandmothers, the oldest one believed to be 82, who finished the march.

A patrol car covered the route to give emergency first aid or other assistance. A phone number was given in case anybody wanted to drop out in mid-march and be driven home.

Addresses were spelled out but names were not given. Here are some of the clues:

"Leave new church property and proceed south on Henderson to 3433. Name clue—Steve always gets his man." This was the home of Steve Nayduki of the RCMP.

"Go up the hill and get a pill at 3441." This was the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McGill. Mr. McGill is a druggist.

"Hit 'em—but not this hard." This was the home of Bill Basham.

"It could be a Spanish one." This was the home of Gerald Main.

"Think of a small car." This was the home of Neil Morris.

"All I want for Christmas is my two front teeth." This was the home of Dr. David Parfitt, dentist.

Ian McCoy, Commissioner Glenn Holland

Scout Awarded Jamboree Trip

Ian McCoy, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Scout Troop, has been chosen to represent Fort Victoria District at the North American Jamboree at Camp Fargut, Idaho, next month.

Jan is a member of the 4th Victoria group of Scouts. This week Ian was given a cheque for $110 by District Commissioner Glenn Holland. Cost of the trip is $175 and Ian will be helping to earn money to cover his expenses.

He's already participated in a scheme to raise money for the jamboree trip. As other Scouts and Venturers did, he collected and brought in to Scout Hall a pile of newspapers six feet high.

He was photographed standing beside his newspapers when he was given the cheque Tuesday night. When scout meetings resume in the fall, Ian will be asked to give a report of the jamboree to his Scout friends.

Christian Life 'Adventure' Aim of Institute Training

An evangelism institute aimed at the layman will be conducted by Campus Crusade for Christ of Canada in First Church of the Nazarene, Quadra and Kings, today and Sunday.

The institute will focus attention upon "the fulfilment of the Great Commission," Rev. William Bahan, minister of the church, said this week.

"The training offered is planned to show how to live the abundant Christian life in the power of the Holy Spirit and to equip Christian laymen with a simple, clear, contemporary way to communicate the claims of Christ," he said.

Mr. Bahan quoted the words of Dr. William Bright, president of Campus Crusade International:

"I would like you to think of the Christian life as a great adventure, for Jesus said 'I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.'"

Also, I want you to know that God loves us and has a wonderful, exciting plan for every life. We are not creatures of chance brought into the world to live a meaningless, miserable existence but rather a life of purpose and joyful service. Any student knows that there are definite laws in the physical realm that are inviolate; just so, there are different spiritual laws that govern our spiritual lives.

TRUE HAPPINESS "Every man is seeking happiness, but the Bible says that there is only one way to know true happiness, this is through God's way."

Mr. Bahan said he believes this is one of the most significant training sessions his church has planned "and one that could change the whole outlook and future of our church."

"Laymen must learn how to share their faith if the Christian Church is to be effective in our day. Church history has shown that, whenever the gospel has been left to the ministry, the church has become ritualistic and formal."

"When the laymen began to share their faith the church was progressive and full of life. This is the greatest need in the Christian Church today."

Earth, Moon Slides Sunday Program

The most spectacular photographs ever made will be shown at the Christadelphian Kings Road Hall at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. R. W. Stodel announced this week.

Mr. Stodel, of the group's ecclesiastical campaign committee, said a series of 28 official slides released recently by the American space authority NASA, featuring color photos of the earth and moon, will be shown. They were taken during the Apollo 8 mission last December.

"On Christmas Eve, while millions watched and listened, the astronauts read the opening verses from the book of Genesis," Mr. Stodel said.

In keeping with this, Sunday's talk will stress that the Bible teaches "instant creation" by supreme divine power and that the earth was not created for destruction by atomic holocaust but as a beginning to a carefully prepared plan, Mr. Stodel said.

"The fact that the Bible was chosen to be read to all the world bears testimony to the fact that this book is still the divinely guided word of God," he added.

The Christadelphians base all their beliefs upon this conviction, he said, and the speaker will prove from scripture that a glorious happy future awaits this earth under the government of the "King of Kings." The talk is titled Will the Earth Be Inhabited?

Port Alberni Convention*Pensioners Supported In Income Tax Plea

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—Mrs. Isobel Dawson, minister without portfolio, offered her support Thursday to a B.C. Old Age Pensioners' Organization resolution which urged that income tax exemptions should be raised for senior citizens.

Speaking at a banquet Thursday during the group's convention at Echo 67 centre, Port Alberni, Mrs. Dawson said: "It is unfortunate that when the federal government reduced the age for pensions from 70 to 65, they did not in the wisdom allow the exemption to change at the same time."

She said exemptions should be raised from $1,000 to at least

$1,500 for single pensioners and up to $2,000 at 70. She felt that for married couples the exemption should be at least $2,500 at 65, rising to $3,000 at age 70.

Outlining efforts made by the provincial government to improve the situation for the elderly, Mrs. Dawson said: "Here we are on one side providing additional benefits while on the other hand, the federal government is raising them back."

Present provincial aid could bring payments up to $139.20 monthly for each pensioner together with other health and welfare benefits, including hospitalization, but failure to change federal income tax exemptions meant that pensioners had to pay income tax.

HOUSING PLANS

She described provincial plans to provide additional housing complexes for the elderly.

She said $500,000 had been set aside for the largest new project in Burnaby, $275,000 for Port Moody, and $177,000 for North Burnaby.

"This year indicates great expansions in housing for our senior citizens," Mrs. Dawson said.

She also outlined plans for hearing aid clinics and for a hearing aid bank from which those requiring aids could draw them, if they were unable to afford to buy aids.

Mrs. Dawson also praised a new provincial pensioners' counselling service. The first counsellors' seminar was held in Victoria recently.

LEGAL PROBLEMS

"Forty-five counsellors are now out doing a tremendous job among old age pensioners," she said.

The counsellors dealt with a wide variety of questions involving legal problems, income tax, and federal questionnaires and other more personal matters.

June 23 to July 5 had been designated as Elderly Citizens and Pioneers Week, said Mrs. Dawson. Service clubs and organizations, as well as municipal councils, were being asked to participate in special events.

Acting mayor Ald. John Williamson welcoming the visitors on behalf of the city, said: "Senior citizens made it possible for the younger generation to enjoy the affluent society. We should never be satisfied until all our senior citizens have the means to live in comfort and dignity."

DIRECTOR'S LIST

At Friday morning's session, Mr. Yates was re-elected for two years. Mr. Haley will continue as first vice-president for a second year.

Other officers elected were second vice-president E. C. Blish, Parksville, treasurer, Mrs. Margaret MacKenzie, Vancouver; secretary Mrs. Lillian Browne, White Rock.

Directors are: Tom Alex, White Rock; Mrs. A. J. Bush, Esquimalt; Mrs. Elsie Thacker, Salt Spring; Mrs. Becky Sharp, Vancouver; E. Urch, Surrey; Ben Clarke, Williams Lake; Sam Daniels, Edmonds branch.

The delegates approved about 38 out of 68 resolutions presented at the conference.

PENSION PLAN

A number of those supported centred around pensions and were combined into one which urged that the federal government should increase the basic old age pension to $2,000 a year for single people and $3,500 for married pensioners. The resolution stated that the pensions should be tied to the cost of living with revision and adjustment every six months.

In their resolution on income exemptions, delegates urged the federal government to reduce the age limit for the extra $500 personal income tax exemption for all persons aged 65 or over. The convention ended Friday.

FOUR MEMBERS of choir from 300-member Sunshine Club, Port Alberni entertain convention delegates. Backed by club's string orchestra, they were conducted by Mrs. Henry Boe. Other entertainment was provided by group from Coombs.—(Mary Taylor)

Parksville*Cash Drive Starts
To Assist Tourism

PARKSVILLE — An annual campaign for funds to operate the tourist bureau and for tourist publicity is being conducted by Parksville and district Chamber of Commerce.

A canvass of business establishments and resort owners is underway, led by committee chairman B. W. Burns. It is hoped to realize about $2,000.

The tourist bureau was opened on June 15 and will continue open until the middle of September.

The chamber has decided to sponsor a Good Citizen award for the man or woman considered to have contributed the most to the community during the year.

Pollution was discussed at a recent meeting and it was decided to write to the director of pollution control requesting more information in regard to an application from Columbia Beach Estates at French Creek to discharge sewage 600 feet below low tide.

It was announced that Miss Tina van Elk of Parksville will represent the chamber in the annual Miss Parksville beauty contest on July 5.

R. & E. Crushing and Contracting Co. Ltd. of Port Alberni has been awarded a contract for about 5,460 lineal feet of paving in Parksville. A bid of $19,402 was accepted by the village council.

A report from the building inspector to council showed that May building permits amounted to $120,000.

A request from a resident of Temple Road area for re-zoning of property to allow for construction of a trailer park resulted in approval of a motion to prepare a bylaw for re-zoning. A public hearing into the proposal will be arranged later.

A request for more pedestrian safety in the vicinity of the Island Hall Hotel and in the business district was made by Mrs. Mary Sutherland, hotel owner. Council decided to ask the highways department to survey the area.

The community hall is to be equipped with two oil furnaces in time for the fall and winter season.

The council will not hold regular mid-monthly meetings in July, August and September.

Cowichan Board*Election of Trustee
Will Be Held Today

NORTH COWICHAN—Cowichan school district ratepayers within North Cowichan municipality will go to the polls today to elect one school trustee to fill the vacancy left by Jack Efford who retired several weeks ago.

Two candidates are contesting the seat. They are David Roy Haywood, employment supervisor at the Crofton pulp mill, and Frederick Zantvoort a stock broker.

Another vacancy on the school board was filled a few weeks ago when Kurt Horn of Maple Bay was acclaimed. That vacancy occurred when Alastair MacDonald resigned from the board shortly before Mr. Efford.

Coroner C. F. Newcombe said an inquest date would be set later.

Study
Wins Prize

DUNCAN — Twelve-year-old Nola Yurechko, an Alexander elementary school student, has won third prize in an essay contest for her study of the life of former Conservative leader John Diefenbaker.

Nola, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Yurechko of 241 McNairy Street, Duncan, gained the award in a 200th anniversary competition organized by Encyclopedia Britannica. The contest was open to students in Canada and the U.S. who competed for 252 prizes.

NEW ATLAS

Nola's third prize in the junior division will consist of the new Britannica atlas.

Her entry took her two months of research and two weeks of writing to produce her 1,200-word essay. She said that while gathering research material she corresponded with Mr. Diefenbaker's private secretary who proved to be very helpful.

Born at Comox, Nola also lived in Ontario and Crofton before starting school at Duncan in September.

TOP STUDENT

After completion of her schooling, she would like to become a primary teacher or a nurse. Her hobbies are reading and swimming. S. B. Fulton, acting principal of Alexander elementary school, who encouraged Nola to enter the contest, describes her as the top Grade 7 student at the school.

On Monday, the group will be flown to Tahiti, site of the company's sawmill and shiploading facilities. The party will be flown back to Seattle that night.

Danish

Eighteen Danish port representatives will tour mill and shiploading facilities of the Tahsis Co. Ltd. at Gold River and Tahsis on Monday.

The group includes prominent businessmen, four members of Parliament and other government representatives. They are from the Copenhagen Harbor Board and Port of Copenhagen Authority.

The group is on a study tour of various ports in North America, including several in the Pacific Northwest of the U.S.

They will be flown from Seattle to Gold River, where they will inspect the Tahsis Co. bleached kraft pulp mill and shiploading facilities.

On Monday, the group will be flown to Tahiti, site of the company's sawmill and shiploading facilities. The party will be flown back to Seattle that night.

Low Wages Blamed For Few Therapists

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO—Central Vancouver Island Union Board of Health agreed Thursday during its quarterly meeting that money was not as important as health.

Chairman Ald. George McKnight of Port Alberni, commented: "You can't put health matters into dollars."

The board had been discussing the same problem they had been studying for more than a year—the need for more staff and, a newer addition to the problem, the need for speech therapists.

Public health nurse Hazel Whittington said: "Even if we had three speech therapists in the school district, that wouldn't be too many for the number of children who need help."

Health unit director Dr. Peter Reynolds said that there was an international shortage of therapists which was accentuated in British Columbia because of poor wages. He said one province offered newly-trained therapists what B.C. was offering a therapist with 15 years experience.

A letter will be sent to Health Minister Ralph Lofmark, asking for speech therapists for the health unit and for funds to pay wages and operating expenses.

The minister has told the board that curtailment of provincial funds by the federal government made it impossible for the B.C. government to provide additional health inspectors.

The board will send a copy of Mr. Lofmark's letter to Ottawa asking which grants had been cut and the dates they would be effective.

Mother Prints Her Own Book

A children's book called Speck the Brownie and His Friends, now on sale in bookstores in Victoria, Nanaimo and Vancouver, has the unusual distinction of having been written, illustrated, printed and bound by a multi-talented Victoria mother of four.

Mrs. Elmay Crow, 740 New-after several publishers had burred Street, undertook the task barked at the cost of printing in six colors.

Mrs. Crow bought a 30-year-old lithograph machine and with the help of her husband, Del, managed to master the difficult process of multi-colored printing from aluminum plates, each of which was hand "engraved."

It took the persistent couple two years to perfect the process.

The attractive book, profusely illustrated, contains original stories written in verse form. Their appeal is to the kindergarten set. Price is $3.95 (an earlier book, Speck the Brownie, in black and white, sells for $1.25).

Mrs. Crow, whose son, Duncan, 14, and daughters Kathy, 13, Lisa, 9, and Sandra, 8, are her greatest fans, learned her art from her mother, a graduate of the Glasgow School of Art, and at the California

Her next project is the production of sculptured likenesses of some of the characters in her books, which are to be permanently displayed in a Parksville park.

Mr. Crow, 35, is planning to return to university to get his teacher's degree.

Walkathon
Will Aid
Mayne Fair

MAYNE ISLAND—Mayne Island Agricultural Society is planning a "fun-walkathon" June 29.

Among those who have indicated they will attend is NDP leader T. C. Douglas, MP for Nanaimo - Cowichan - The Islands.

The walkathon will cover a 10½-mile course and proceeds will go toward the annual fall fair. The walkers will start at 11 a.m. and organizers have arranged for prizes to be given and refreshment stands will be located along the route.

Island Experiment*Cleanup Ahead For Highways

The provincial government wants Vancouver Island municipalities to co-operate in an experimental program designed to remove all unsightly junk and rubbish from along major highways.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Thursday the Highways Scenic Improvement Act would immediately be brought into force along major Island highways in provincial territory. He asked all municipalities to petition the B.C. government for similar action within their boundaries.

Once this is done, Mr. Campbell said, he would be able to order removal from private property adjoining designated highways rubbish, garbage, ashes, and all forms of junk including old cars and machinery.

The designated highways would include the new and old Island Highway from Victoria to Port Hardy, Port Alberni Highway and Sooke Highway to

Found

COURTENAY — The body of 16-year-old Kenneth Smiley was discovered at about 8:30 a.m. Friday, RCMP announced.

The boy was missing and presumed drowned after an inner tube, in which he was riding down Courtenay River, capsize throwing him into the swift running water. The accident occurred June 10 at about 8 p.m.

The body was seen by a woman residing at the home of W. V. Smithers, Courtenay. Coroner Tom Menzies has ordered an inquest for 2:30 p.m. Tuesday.

College Symposium At UVic Sunday

Universities and their functions have changed since Plato and his students sat under trees discussing philosophy — so much, in fact, that there no longer seems to be a clear-cut definition of their role in society.

A symposium starts Sunday at the University of Victoria to examine the various ideas different sections of the population have about the role of the university in contemporary society.

Papers representing the views of labor, industry, government, the church and average citizens will be presented at the two-day symposium to be held at Craigdarroch College on the Gordon Head campus.

Principal speakers will include Dr. Eugene Forsey, a former director of research for the Canadian Labor Congress; Stuart Keate, publisher of the Vancouver Sun; Dr. Norman MacKenzie, former president of UBC; and David Anderson, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich.

Much time will be allotted for general discussion during the symposium and the speakers will meet as a panel near its finish to connect the points raised.

Shawnigan Lake will be given a pollution study, he reported.

Consultant health inspector Claude Stonehouse and two Burnaby vocational school students health inspectors would work in the area for several weeks to ascertain if pollution exists in the lake.

The student Michael Pratt and Norman Clarkson, would make a house-to-house sewage disposal investigation along lake-side properties.

RESERVE VISITS

He said he would be visiting Indian reserves within the health unit area because there were indications that the province would be taking over reserve public health services.

He said environmental sanitation was still a problem on some reserves and that recently salmonella infection cases had been experienced.

Personal hygiene, efficient sewage disposal and availability of portable water would combat salmonella infection.

Burned

NANAIMO—A fire which broke out shortly after midnight Friday levelled Cox's Sawmill on the north end of Gabriola Island.

There was no one in the mill at the time and two trucks were removed before they could be damaged. Cause of the blaze was thought to be spontaneous combustion.

NANAIMO — A 26-year-old welder was killed Thursday afternoon in an industrial accident at Harmae mill.

RCMP said Gordon Samuel Davies of 1399 Discovery Avenue, Nanaimo, died when a cable snapped on a conveyor belt which was being installed in No. 3 woodroom and the conveyor fell 10 feet onto him.

Coroner C. F. Newcombe said an inquest date would be set later.

Engines Collide In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Engine-man David Linton received head lacerations when three Canadian Pacific Railway engine units collided head-on with a freight train in the downtown waterfront area. He was in good condition in hospital.

Cutting Remarks

One hot summer afternoon three or four years ago, I was admiring the roses in Beacon Hill Park when I saw a woman go up to a standard rose tree to pick a flower.

The stem was short and wiry; she bent it this way and that, but still it would not part. Finally, she gave it an impatient tug, and to my horror, the whole branch broke away!

I don't suppose she had any idea of the painstaking care which had gone into the budding and training of this six-foot standard tree, but she wrecked it just as thoroughly as any deliberate vandal, and all for a flower which would be dead within a few hours.

Everyone wants to cut some roses for the house, or for gift bouquets, but a lot of the roses we grow, while ideal for garden decoration, are unsuitable for cutting.

It is a good idea then, when next you overcast your rose beds, to buy and plant a few roses especially for cutting, selecting varieties most suited for this use.

There are three things to look for in choosing roses for cutting. You want flowers with a lot of petals. You want them with thickish petals of good substance. You want a bush that makes vigorous growth—one which will replace rapidly the stems cut away.

The varieties which haven't many petals, such as Betty Upchurch and Etale de Hollande, make a wonderful show in the garden, but they are not so good for cutting. They open up too quickly and are soon overblown and finished.

Some of the old-timers highly suitable for cutting are Madame Butterfly, Lady Sylvia, the whole Ophelia family and of course that peer of roses, Peace. Ena Harkness is a very good red, while G. Dulsberg and Golden Dawn are good yellows.

Very big roses are seldom the best for cut flowers, as the plants are usually slow in growth and are hesitant in replacing the cut-away stems.

Good cultivation and plenty of food and water are most essential for cut-flower roses, for a thin, parched stem just cannot take up enough water from the vase to maintain the flower. Blooms should never be cut in the middle of the day, but in the early morning or in the cool of the evening.

Use a pair of sharp secateurs, take a good long stem, and always make your cut on the slant and immediately above a healthy leaf, so new growth can start again immediately from the dormant growth bud in the leaf axil.

Strip off some of the lower leaves from your cut rose, then using your secateurs, nip off most of the thorns—you'll pull your whole flower arrangement to pieces if you try to re-arrange a rose stem in the vase with the thorns still on—and slit the base of the stem up about two inches.

The flowers should be plunged up to their necks in cool water and stored in a cool place for five or six hours before arranging them.

March and November are the preferred times to buy and plant roses, but the plants offered for sale at these times are dormant and it is difficult for the novice to visualize just how the flowers will look.

A good way to get acquainted with the popular rose varieties would be to attend the annual summer show of the Victoria Horticultural Society today and Sunday at the Victoria Curling Rink, 1952 Quadra Street. Doors open from 2 to 10 p.m. today and from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Sunday, admission 50 cent.

Roses play an especially prominent part in this show, with forty separate competitions arranged exclusively for this flower.

Women Slandered

Judy Nicol, a writer for the Chicago Sun Times, wrote recently about an organization which complains that women have created a disgrace by emasculating men.

The organization, called SEAM, and acronym for Society for the Emancipation of the American Male, says women have sissified men by wearing pants, controlling the purse strings, and making life generally unbearable.

SEAM contends that almost all the evils of American life, from mental illness to alcoholism, are caused by women.

SEAM says, "There is something very wrong in a country that has 8 million fathers who have deserted their families; 500,000 divorces a year; one in four marriages breaking up; 9 million widows; one half of all working-age women employed; 20 million mentally ill persons; 6 million alcoholics;

8 million homosexuals (many of them reluctant); 44,000 suicides per year; 40,000 youngsters beaten and tortured by their parents each year; thousands of fatherless and emotionally disturbed children; a plague of juvenile delinquency and drug addiction; and the average life span of the male shrinking with each passing decade."

SEAM believes the United States is a matriarchy, and they want to make it a patriarchy.

The idea that women are the root of evil is an ancient cliché which men are happy to honor by way of excusing their own weaknesses.

Women surely are capable of participating in evil. We have our Bonnies as well as our Clydes. But women didn't invent evil.

The U.S. is not a matriarchy. Women are not to blame for whatever is wrong, any more than men. Far from running the country, women are in a sense second-rate citizens.

Almost without exception they are not allowed to earn as much money as men. They are foreclosed from many kinds of professions. Who ever heard of a woman automobile mechanic; or even a woman television repairman?

How many women politicians are there? How many presidents of corporations? Women have almost no chance of becoming persons of consequence except through their husbands.

Who are the exceptions? Actresses, courtesans and spies. Elizabeth Taylor, Pompadour, Mata Hari.

One of their troubles is that women have a tendency to get pregnant. This disqualifies them for any kind of work which requires consistent availability. It also produces children, who are, whatever the generation gap, desirable.

SEAM says 8 million fathers have deserted their families. Is this inevitably the fault of the wife? A man who deserts his family is certainly weaker than a wife who stays. SEAM is implying that the woman drives the man out of the house.

Very often the man would drive the woman out of the house, but she can't go. She has to stay with the children.

SEAM appears to blame women for 20 million mentally ill persons. I don't know, but I would guess that there are as many mentally ill women as men. Who drove whom insane? It takes two to get a divorce. It takes two to beat children.

How can you blame a woman for being a widow? Does SEAM mean she murdered her husband? Women who murder their husbands generally go to prison.

I think women are a very interesting sex. They are tough and amusing, and helpful. I don't think they should wear trousers, though. I like to look at their legs.

Sex and Dirty Jokes

A colleague in the newsroom sent me a brief inter-office memo not long ago: "The dirty joke has all but disappeared. I seldom hear one. Two years ago, I encountered a couple a week, maybe more. I still meet the same guys with the same frequency. Now, no jokes."

This has been my experience, too, and I am glad. Not because I object to dirty jokes per se, but because not one in a hundred was truly funny—but you felt you had to laugh (at least weakly) to demonstrate your virility and good fellowship.

I think the rapid increase in sexual permissiveness the last few years has killed off the dirty joke. A dirty joke is basically a "reaction-formation" to sexual repressiveness in a society; it is not a normal outlet for humor. Many societies have not had any dirty jokes, and would not understand or appreciate them—not because these cultures are puritanical, but quite the opposite, because they are permissive in the area of sex, and find it incomprehensible that we smirk and snigger about a subject that to them is as simple and natural and obvious as breathing.

It is no accident that in Denmark last year, when all censorship of pornographic material was lifted, sales of pornographic literature on newsstands dropped almost to the vanishing point.

In his recent book, Rationale of the Dirty Joke, G. Legman points out that "The almost total prohibitive nature of our culture toward the three primary impulses of the newborn and growing child—the oral, anal and genital, in that order—Contrasts worse than almost anything else about us with the total permissiveness, in regard to these same impulses in children, in more advanced societies, such as the natives of Okinawa."

It may sound strange to our ears to hear Okinawa cited as a "more advanced" country than ours, but it is part of our national pride and prejudice to believe that because we have attained the highest level of technical and material accomplishment in the world, that therefore we are similarly superior in our social, ethical and sexual attitudes.

A joke is generally a form of anxiety-release, and sometimes it is a useful and necessary form, as when soldiers jest before battle. But the dirty joke indicates the amount of repressed anxiety about sex in our society; it is a mark of psychic slavery, not of freedom.

Our shifting sexual standards will no doubt drift too far into laxity before they are corrected, but I believe the general tendency is a healthy one, and that out of the chaos and confusion there will come a more realistic and more humane conception of sexuality in our society than we have yet permitted ourselves to imagine—except through the distorted and distorting medium of the dirty joke.

Thieu Proposal For Elections Includes Reds

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu has presented his senior military supporters and cabinet members with proposals for elections in South Vietnam to include Communist representation in some form, informed sources said today.

The sources said the South Vietnamese president was trying to ensure a solid governmental consensus on election procedures that might be negotiated with the Viet Cong.

Among the proposals being put forth is one that would set up a government-Viet Cong commission to study election procedures.

Government and American sources were officially silent on Thieu's moves.

Thieu's meeting was called only a few hours after President Nixon in Washington announced that all U.S. combat troops may be withdrawn from Vietnam by the end of next year.

Complaints Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford has asked officials of the combines branch to look into complaints that major lumber companies in British Columbia are curtailing their production in order to raise prices. The matter was brought up in the Commons Thursday by NDP leader T. C. Douglas. Basford replied he found it hard to believe the complaints.

Ten Killed

VIENNA, Ga. (AP) — Ten persons—nine of them children—were killed Friday when a freight train smashed broadside into their car and scattered bodies three-quarters of a mile, officers said.

Laburnum Danger Growing

Laburnum pods are ripening and with each new crop there's a crop of youngsters who haven't yet learned that the little pea-like seeds are poisonous.

Headaches, vomiting, dizziness and, in some cases, convulsions signal danger from 30 minutes to four hours after the seeds are eaten.

Five children have been treated this spring, all successfully, which isn't always the case. Poison Control Centre is at Royal Jubilee Hospital and the phone number is 338-3131.

Stalemate Extends Food Store Strike

VANCOUVER (CP)—The first resumption of talks in the month-long lockout of 800 meatcutters in the British Columbia Lower Mainland died Friday amid complaints from both union and management.

The Canadian Food and Allied Workers Union said negotiators refused to consider variations the union made in demands for a shorter work week for 800 meatcutters.

C. George Robson, counsel for the supermarkets, said the union's position was unchanged with minor exceptions. Talks were broken off and there were no plans for further meetings.

The union's original demand was for a $1-an-hour pay increase on a base rate of $3.80 and for a 35-hour, four-day work week instead of 40 hours over five days.

The union said Friday night it had offered an alternative—a 32-hour week followed by a 40-hour week—but over four days. The talks had been arranged by a mediator.

Cheered in Streets

Rockefeller Scores Diplomatic Victory

ASUNCION, Paraguay (UPI) — New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller scored a victory for personal diplomacy in Paraguay Friday by breaking schedule and walking for blocks through the streets of Asuncion to the cheers of several thousand assembled Paraguayans.

The governor, on a fact-finding tour of Latin America for President Nixon, was en route from the Congress to the national Pantheon to pay tribute to fallen Paraguayan heroes. He shunned a closed sedan assigned him for the trip to make it afoot.

People quickly gathered along the route when the word spread, applauding the presidential emissary from balconies and at the Pantheon. Rockefeller broke stride repeatedly to reach into the crowd, shake outstretched hands and exchange greetings in Spanish.

Prior to his visit to the Congress the New York governor spent an hour and 10 minutes alone with President Gen. Alfredo Stroessner, who has ruled Paraguay with a benevolent dictatorship for the past 15 years. What they discussed was not made public.

Rockefeller and an aide placed a six-foot wreath of red and white flowers at the Pantheon in a tribute to Paraguay's martyrs.

Spectators crowded in again to shake the governor's hand as he waved, smiled and reached out to the crowd. He then circled Independence Square to get back to the Guarani Hotel to continue his meetings with Paraguayan farm and industrial leaders and several cabinet members.

Nothing Works on Shortest Trip

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP) — The first hovercraft in the Canadian North set a record Thursday: the shortest trip by a hovercraft in northern Canada. What was supposed to be a 1,000-mile journey from this community down the Mackenzie River to the Arctic Ocean ended seconds after it began. The 10-ton machine, owned by Pacific Hovercraft of Vancouver, lurched off the launching pad and rose stiffly to its four-foot operating height Thursday. Then the gas turbine engine had to be shut down when electrical problems developed and the machine settled back onto the ground. The party chartered an aircraft to fly a new generator and regulator from Yellowknife, 140 miles northeast of here.

Battery problems developed. One other snag hit the expedition. A special radio on board the hovercraft was useless because nobody knew how to tune it.

"If we get stuck," quipped Robert Raymond of Victoria, "we'll all get together and yell."

Bertrand Fights For Post

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, fighting to retain leadership of the ruling Union Nationale party, said Friday night he is prepared to propose a presidential system of government for Quebec by way of a referendum.

The premier made the pledge in his address to the party's leadership convention, which will elect a permanent successor tonight to the late premier Daniel Johnson.

"We will establish the presidential system if the people want it. As far as I'm concerned I am ready to propose it in a referendum."

Premier Bertrand, elected interim party leader by the legislature caucus following Johnson's death last September, already has said referendum legislation will be brought before the national assembly this fall.

He did not explain how a presidential system would operate in the Canadian context.

Theme of his speech was "I speak to you tonight of the new Quebec." The presidential system was the key "new" element.

He said the new system would come "after having inherited over the years parliamentary systems and structures which were imported to suit the needs of various conquerors of times past."

"We are finally going to give ourselves a system designed to meet our needs, a system not only to ensure our survival or our existence but to ensure our development."

A big majority of the 55-man party caucus then rushed up to the podium to surround the premier.

Five of the 10 brass bands in the Coliseum blared away noisily.

Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal, last of the three candidates and a major challenger to Bertrand's leadership, received Keith Pleasonton, 15, has been in Bernillo County medical centre since Sunday. He is in fair condition.

The community of about 30 persons has been placed under an informal quarantine. Doctors and health personnel are in the area.

Means Queried For Moving Poisonous Gas

OTTAWA (CP) — A public outcry in the United States over the movement of poisonous gases prompted Prime Minister Trudeau to demand how such war materials are transported in Canada.

The precise answer given by the prime minister by the defence department has not been disclosed.

However, department sources say that when toxic gases are shipped from one point to another in Canada, service rather than civilian transport is used.

NO FLIGHTS
The defence research board operates two chemical-biological laboratories, one at Shirley Bay near Ottawa and the other at Suffield, Alta.

Meanwhile, it has been denied officially here that the U.S. flies materials across Canadian territory for use at biological warfare test centres in Alaska and Greenland.

David Lewis, deputy NDP leader, asked a series of questions on this subject Wednesday in the Commons. Lewis used the term "germs and other materials."

CONSULTATION
He was told by Treasury Board President C. M. Drury, acting as external affairs minister in the absence of Mitchell Sharp, that Canada-U.S. arrangements call for prior consultation before any such flights are made.

And, Drury added, "no permission for such flights has been sought."

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Prime Minister Ian Smith won a landslide referendum victory Friday as Rhodesia's white-dominated electorate overwhelmingly approved a new apartheid-style constitution and the declaration of a republic.

With nearly all the votes counted, the government had won a resounding 73 per cent yes vote for its white-supremacist constitution and an even more impressive 82 per cent "yes" for plans to declare a republic.

"This is a very happy result," Smith said. "I wanted a good strong yes vote to send a firm, positive message out to the rest of the world."

FINAL PARTING
The result seemed to ensure an imminent final parting between Rhodesia and Britain from which Rhodesia declared its independence Nov. 11, 1965, after the white minority would not agree with Britain on plans for the political future of the Africans.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his ministers have said they consider the referendum and its proposals to be just as illegal as the declaration of independence and a British spokesman Friday night called the declaration of a republic invalid.

POLITICAL SOURCES
Political sources in Salisbury speculated that Britain would react to the vote by withdrawing the head of its mission, Peter Carter, and retiring Gov.-Gen. Sir Humphrey Gibbs, the official symbol of the British crown.

Smith has scheduled a news conference for today, when he is expected to announce plans to put into effect the constitution, which provides that the African majority will never rule the country.

The population of the country is made up of 4,000,000 black Africans and 230,000 whites.

HEAVY VOTE
The voter turnout Friday appeared high. From the time the polls opened there were large lineups at polling stations.

About 81,600 white and 5,500 privileged blacks were eligible to cast ballots and as returns appeared from urban and remote constituencies, every result was the same—a solid "yes."

The government, now that the constitution is approved, also proposes to divide all land in Rhodesia: half for the whites and half for the Africans.

But a leading council member, Kayisa Nwini, in a statement said the majority of the 25 council members were totally opposed to the constitution.

Sharp—cheerful but mum

Peking Parley 'Progressing'

OTTAWA (CP) — Talks between Canada and Communist China on the question of diplomatic recognition "have progressed on substantive issues in a deliberate and orderly way," External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Friday.

The minister, who earlier in the day returned from a Scandinavian tour—including a visit to Stockholm where the talks are being held—said the question of Nationalist China is "one of the most important being discussed."

'AMBIGUOUS'
But he refused to give any details during a news conference. If the talks are to be successful, he said, "they must be secret."

He said that until the present government took the initiative in seeking diplomatic recognition of the Peking regime, "Canada's position was a bit ambiguous so far as its one-China policy is concerned."

But he said it is clear now Canada recognizes only one government of China, and is seeking to recognize the Communist regime as that government.

If the current negotiations don't succeed, he was asked, would Canada then continue to recognize the Nationalist Regime as the government of China?

Sharp said he is confident the talks will be successful. If there were 145 separate negotiations in three days, lasting two hours each, probably one-third of them will result in further dates. Only a handful may end in weddings.

"We had more negotiations in one place at one time than have ever been held before, I believe," said Harlan J.

Spanish Bases Kept By U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring that "the era of foreign military bases has ended," Spain agreed Friday to a 15-month extension under which the United States maintains military bases in Spain. In exchange, Spain will receive $50,000,000 worth of military equipment from the United States and a $35,000,000 loan.

But Spanish disenchantment with the agreement was evident in a statement issued by Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella. He said the bases would become "exclusively Spanish" at the end of a phasing-out period.

DISENCHANTED
Spain originally sought in long negotiations $1 billion from the United States in exchange for a five-year renewal of the agreement.

Sen. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, expressed his own disenchantment with the agreement.

"I feel bound to oppose it," he said. "I asked the secretary of state, both in person and in writing, to put the agreement in the form of a treaty or a convention which could be studied and voted on by the Senate. He refused to accept the suggestion," Fulbright said.

For his part, Castiella declared: "The people of Spain are aware of a world phenomenon which is indisputable: the era of foreign military bases has ended."

"Nations are every day less willing to harbor this sort of establishment and demand, instead, more rational systems of co-operation."

He made it clear that Canada would support the seating of Communist China in the United Nations should the current talks be successful. "Our attitude toward seating in the UN would have to be consistent."

Canada had no plans to recognize other Communist regimes which are not now recognized—such as North Korea and North Vietnam.

There were 145 separate negotiations in three days, lasting two hours each, probably one-third of them will result in further dates. Only a handful may end in weddings.

"We had more negotiations in one place at one time than have ever been held before, I believe," said Harlan J.

Brown, president of H. J. Brown International, Inc., Washington, D.C., merger-making firm that organized and planned the multiple matings.

There may be only a half-dozen acquisitions finally closed. The ratio of negotiations to closings averages about 25 to 1.

But to Brown's surprise, four of the suitor companies found themselves invited into negotiations by four other acquiring companies. The pursuers themselves were being pursued.

Each of the 17 merger-minded bridegrooms had dates with up to 16 of the prospective brides.

The latter had been selected in advance by the Brown company as having special technical abilities of interest to the acquirers.

Because all the negotiations had to be conducted with secrecy, Brown dispersed the meetings in 20 widely-separated rooms.

The 17 acquiring companies were mostly small to medium in size, ranging from $250,000 to $150,000,000 in annual sales. Each had received in advance from the Brown organization a directory of 400 acquisition prospects in this region of the U.S. The catalogue contained a one-page printed description of each prospect, but identified them only by code numbers until the negotiations actually were scheduled.

Corporate Courtships Arranged

Business Mergers Bloom in June

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — The merger movement in the United States reached the wholesale stage Friday. Seventeen companies looking for mates completed hotel-room courtships with 53 prospective brides. Object, corporate matrimony.

There were 145 separate negotiations in three days, lasting two hours each, probably one-third of them will result in further dates. Only a handful may end in weddings.

"We had more negotiations in one place at one time than have ever been held before, I believe," said Harlan J.

Brown, president of H. J. Brown International, Inc., Washington, D.C., merger-making firm that organized and planned the multiple matings.

VANCOUVER (CP) — B111 Wok's time betting shops were open as usual Friday, two days after police raided seven of them and laid charges against Wok and seven of his office managers.

B.C. Tel Negotiations Going Around Clock

VANCOUVER (CP) — Union and management officials agreed Friday to begin round-the-clock negotiations to avert a strike at British Columbia Telephone Co.

The two sides agreed to resume bargaining after D. M. Carter, personnel director for B.C. Tel, sent a letter to the union Thursday which said it was "in the public interest that a contract be concluded."

About 6,000 plant, traffic and clerical employees of B.C. Tel have completed a strike vote but no result has been announced.

Meanwhile, another source of food supply in Vancouver closed Friday. Locked out were 100 employees at the Malkin's division of Westfair Foods, a major wholesale firm.

E. R. O'Neill, general manager of Malkin's, said he did not believe the retail outlets served by the company would have to close. He said other wholesale firms would look after them "to the best of their ability."

Malkin's supplies independent stores not involved in a wages dispute that closed 103 Vancouver-area supermarkets May 24.

That dispute involves members of the meat cutters' union and the store clerks' union, both seeking shorter hours and higher wages.

stand not only the federal government's political motives, but its illusory book-keeping methods as well.

According to government bookkeepers, civil servants now have a balance of almost three billion dollars in their superannuation, or pension account.

In theory there is enough money to give each of the country's 50,000 retired civil servants, widows and orphans a $2,000 lump-sum bonus out of the interest earned by the account last year alone.

In fact, however, the government does not have three billion dollars salted away in a bank account, and the outlook for even a modest pension increase in the near future is not bright.

Unlike most private enterprises, the government does not physically take its employees' contributions and invest them. It merely keeps a running tab of the amount paid, on paper, to the book-keeping account by employee and employer.

At present civil servants pay six and a half per cent of their salary into this account. This amount is matched, on paper, by the government, and the account, in theory, collects interest at the rate of four per cent per annum.

The account is, in other words, merely an exercise in book-keeping: a meticulous record of paper transactions. Each year, the government still has to budget for the money needed to pay the civil servants their pensions.

Though the government last year paid out more than $84,000,000 in superannuation payments, the superannuation account grew by almost $300,000,000 through addition of interest and employee and employer contributions.

Those requiring transportation will be able to board a bus in front of the old North Ward school grounds next to the Colonist, 2631 Douglas. Tickets are $2.75 and must be picked up at the Colonist.

Port Alberni Convention

Pensioners Supported
In Income Tax Plea

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—Mrs. Isobel Dawson, minister without portfolio, offered her support Thursday to a B.C. Old Age Pensioners Organization resolution which urged that income tax exemptions should be raised for senior citizens.

Speaking at a banquet Thursday during the group's convention at Echo 67 centre, Port Alberni, Mrs. Dawson said: "It is unfortunate that when the federal government reduced the age for pensions from 70 to 65, they did not in the wisdom allow the exemption to change at the same time."

She said exemptions should be raised from $1,000 to at least

$1,500 for single pensioners and up to $2,000 at 70. She felt that for married couples the exemption should be at least $2,500 at 65, rising to $3,000 at age 70.

Outlining efforts made by the provincial government to improve the situation for the elderly, Mrs. Dawson said: "Here we are on one side providing additional benefits while on the other hand, the federal government is raking them back."

Present provincial aid could bring payments up to $139.20 monthly for each pensioner together with other health and welfare benefits, including hospitalization, but failure to change federal income tax exemptions meant that pensioners had to pay income tax.

HOUSING PLANS

She described provincial plans to provide additional housing complexes for the elderly.

She said $500,000 had been set aside for the largest new project in Port Alberni, $275,000 for Port Moody, and $177,000 for Port Burnaby.

"This year indicates great expansions in housing for our senior citizens," Mrs. Dawson said.

She also outlined plans for hearing aid clinics and for a hearing aid bank from which those requiring aids could draw them. If they were unable to afford to buy aids.

Mrs. Dawson also praised a new provincial pensioners' counselling service. The first counsellors' seminar was held in Victoria recently.

LEGAL PROBLEMS

"Forty-five counsellors are now out doing a tremendous job among old age pensioners," she said.

The counsellors dealt with a wide variety of questions involving legal problems, income tax, and federal questionnaires and other more personal matters.

June 29 to July 5 had been designated as Elderly Citizens and Pioneers Week, said Mrs. Dawson. Service clubs and organizations, as well as municipal councils, were being asked to participate in special events.

Acting mayor Ald. John Williamson welcoming the visitors on behalf of the city, said: "Senior citizens made it possible for the younger generation to enjoy the affluent society. We should never be satisfied until all our senior citizens have the means to live in comfort and dignity."

DIRECTOR'S LIST

At Friday morning's session, Mr. Yates was re-elected for two years. Mr. Haley will continue as first vice-president for a second year.

Other officers elected were second vice-president E. C. Blish, Parksville, treasurer, Mrs. Margaret MacKenzie, Vancouver, secretary, Mrs. Lillian Brown, White Rock.

Directors are: Tom Alex, White Rock; Mrs. A. J. Bush, Enderby; Mrs. Elsie Thecker, Salt Spring; Mrs. Becky Sharp, Vancouver; E. Urich, Surrey; Ben Clarke, Williams Lake; Sam Daniels, Kamloops branch.

The delegates approved about 38 out of 68 resolutions presented at the conference.

PENSION PLAN

A number of those supported centred around pensions and were combined into one which urged that the federal government should increase the basic old age pension to $2,000 a year for single people and $3,500 for married pensioners. The resolution stated that the pensions should be tied to the cost of living with revision and adjustment every six months.

In their resolution on income exemptions, delegates urged the federal government to reduce the age limit for the extra $500 personal income tax exemption for all persons aged 65 or over. The convention ended Friday.

PEDESTRIAN SAFETY

A request for more pedestrian safety in the vicinity of the Island Hall Hotel and in the business district was made by Mrs. Mary Sutherland, hotel owner. Council decided to ask the highways department to survey the area.

Crofton Mosquitoes

Oil Takes Away Sting

CROFTON — Mosquitoes which have invaded the Crofton area nearly halted lumber work this week.

Longshoremen, unloading lumber at Crofton wharf, complained about the difficulties of working because of the discomfort which the insects were causing.

Finally diesel oil was spread around the area and the men were able to continue working.

Crofton pulp mill has been issuing repellent to its employees. One workman said that it was used mainly on the night shift.

Experts have agreed that the problem is bad and tentative plans have been made for aerial and ground spraying early next week.

Meanwhile issue of the insecticide Malathion to antimosquito crews has been stopped until special containers arrive at the beginning of the week.

Ald. Margaret Robertson said Friday she had been advised by the municipal engineer that experts from The Mainland located the major mosquito-breeding area and attempts would be made to destroy the larvae by aerial spraying. Adult mosquitoes would be sprayed from the ground. She said the aerial spraying would not be done indiscriminately because of livestock, residential areas and the watershed.

The municipal engineer had stated that malathion did not have a long life span and deteriorates after three days unlike DDT which remained much longer.

DDT is no longer used.

Ald. Robertson said Crofton fire department was being provided with insecticide for spraying from a truck. The municipality also paid for the firemen engaged in spraying operations. Better precautions in mosquito control would be taken early next spring and the engineer's recommendations would be considered.

Cash Drive Starts
To Assist Tourism

PARKSVILLE — An annual campaign for funds to operate the tourist bureau and for tourist publicity is being conducted by Parksville and district Chamber of Commerce.

A canvass of business establishments and resort owners is underway, led by committee chairman B. W. Burns. It is hoped to realize about $2,000.

The tourist bureau was opened on June 15 and will continue open until the middle of September.

The chamber has decided to sponsor a Gold Citizen award for the man or woman considered to have contributed the

Duncan Girl

Diefenbaker
Study
Wins Prize

DUNCAN — Twelve-year-old Nola Yurechko, an Alexander elementary school student, has won third prize in an essay contest for her study of the life of former Conservative leader John Diefenbaker.

Nola, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Yurechko of 241 McIntyre Street, Duncan, gained the award in a 200th anniversary competition organized by Encyclopedia Britannica. The contest was open to students in Canada and the U.S. who completed for 252 prizes.

NEW ATLAS

Nola's third prize in the junior division will consist of the new Britannica atlas.

Her entry took her two months of research and two weeks of writing to produce her 1,200-word essay. She said that while gathering research material she corresponded with Mr. Diefenbaker's private secretary who proved to be very helpful.

Born at Comox, Nola also lived in Ontario and Crofton before starting school at Duncan in September.

TOP STUDENT

After completion of her schooling, she would like to become a primary teacher or a nurse. Her hobbies are reading and swimming. S. B. Fulton, acting principal of Alexander elementary school, who encouraged Nola to enter the contest, describes her as the top Grade 7 student at the school.

On Monday, the group will be flown to Tahsis, site of the company's sawmill. The party will be flown back to Seattle that night.

Danish

Student Patrol

Duncan Constable
Given Big Sendoff

DUNCAN—RCMP corporal Colin Smith was given a big hand by children of Duncan Kiwanis junior safety patrol when he received a going-away gift from Kiwanis member Lindsey Loutet on behalf of the city, North Cowichan and Duncan Kiwanis Club.

Cp. Smith, head of the highway patrol at Duncan, will be leaving for his new post at Terrace at the end of next week.

Since he went to Duncan seven years ago, he attended junior safety patrol ceremonies every June when patrol members received their certificates. This year 115 boys and girls from Duncan and Alexander elementary schools' patrols assembled at Duncan elementary school gymnasium Friday morning.

***

They were congratulated for their "excellent service" by Mayor Jim Qualie of Duncan, Ald. Margaret Robertson of North Cowichan, president of Duncan Kiwanis Club Len Smith, Mr. Loutet and Cpl. Smith.

Mr. Loutet, who has been chairman of the Duncan Kiwanis junior safety patrol for 19 years, said the patrols were established 20 years ago and during that time there had never been an accident.

***

Cpl. Smith said: "That is a record you really can be proud of."

On Friday evening members of the junior patrols were taken to Victoria by private cars for a swim at Crystal Gardens followed by refreshments and a drive through the city to the illuminated parliament buildings.

Cowichan Board

Election of Trustee
Will Be Held Today

NORTH COWICHAN—Cowichan school district ratepayers within North Cowichan municipality will go to the polls today to elect one school trustee to fill the vacancy left by Jack Eford who retired several weeks ago.

Two candidates are contesting the seat. They are David Roy Haywood, employment supervisor at the Crofton pulp mill and Frederick Zantvoort a stock broker.

Another vacancy on the school board was filled a few weeks ago when Kurt Horn of Maple Bay was acclaimed. That vacancy occurred when Alastair MacDonald resigned from the board shortly before Mr. Eford.

Working in Harmony

By MAX LEBRETON

Machetes, sickles and scythes flashed in Thursday afternoon's sun, hewing out trails in every direction along scum-covered, densely overgrown Colquitz Creek.

During the day about 30 workers came and went periodically from the stretch of creek between Marigold and the Trans-Canada Highway along Interurban Road.

The advance party which began the three-day cleanup project Thursday morning included three soldiers in battle dress, carrying walkie-talkies, Saanich parks staff members and about 15 volunteer workers.

Some people brought food and most who joined displayed enthusiasm for the idea thought up by Joe Pilot and a handful of his friends.

Although he wouldn't agree, Mr. Pilot is the mainstay of the entire operation, according to one of his workers.

One 16-year-old girl present said she heard about the project "from the kids downtown."

"Part of the whole idea is to get people to work together in harmony," said Mr. Pilot, wiping perspiration off his brow. He couldn't estimate the area cleared, but pointed out the paths.

"We are making trails to show people where to start—to start physically, then mentally, then spiritually—to clean up this earth, the sky and the water and then their minds."

The "little people (children) come because they want a place to play," he said. "The older people come and stand around for an hour or so, then either leave or join in. The little people get to work right away." "And there are the cynics," he said.

There was nothing cynical about Mrs. F. C. Smith of 4475 Denmore, one of the workers wearing shorts and knee-deep in blackberry brambles, who said she had gone there because "I like Saanich and this creek. All I hope is that next year there will be more enthusiastic people to clean it out."

Free transportation to the cleanup project will be provided by Vancouver Island Coach Lines. The buses will leave at 9:30 a.m., 12:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. today and Sunday, with the last return trip at dusk. The service will not be available Saturday.

By Sunday, Mr. Pilot said, the work party should have the creek dredged out deep and wide enough to allow canoe traffic.

This Sunday there will be a meeting at which people will hear music and talk, said Mr. Pilot. One worker said Mr. Pilot was going to turn his attention next to polluted beaches on Vancouver Island.

Small Blazes In Washington

SEATTLE (AP) — Two small forest fires, both blamed on lightning, were reported Wednesday in Washington, one 45 miles northwest of Yakima in the Snoqualmie National Forest, the other on Swift Creek in Mt. Baker National Forest.

By DON GAIN

It was a terrifying night spent in the frigid English Channel, 25 years ago, clinging to a cork float, recalls William Trickett of 3320 Hocking.

"There were 15 or 16 of us," said Mr. Trickett, who is a survivor of the sinking of the destroyer HMCS Athabaskan.

"We couldn't get the float spread out the way it should have been," he said, "so we put our hands on the back of the next fellow."

"Some of the men were wounded and the water was very cold and oily. When we were rescued at daybreak, there were only three or four of us left. My lifebelt saved me."

S. T. Dunnell of 508 Selkirk also remembers that night 25 years ago.

"We were screening some mine-layers," said the former chief armorer, "and we got the report there were service craft in the area. We went down and tangled with three German destroyers. One of them was sunk and another was damaged so much it had to be beached."

"We didn't know what hit the Athabaskan. Some thought it was shore batteries, but the Germans told us later it was motor torpedo boats." The memories were aroused this week when survivors discussed a reunion to be held in Toronto from June 27 to 30. Going from Victoria is Joseph Bell of 1537 Belcher, a former ack-ack gunner, who said Wednesday it would be "one of the highlights of my life, to see some of the guys I remember from back there."

"I hear there are about 12 or 13 of us on the Island. Maybe I'm a sentimental old fool, but I'd like it if we could get together some night and just yack it up."

A gunner, he was on the second gun from the front that night, he said. "They hit the gun magazine and this cut the stern off, but the watertight doors held us up. We got ready for a tow by the Maids. Then a German E-boat came in and put a torpedo amidships. This cut us right in half."

After a night in the frigid water, Mr. Trickett was rescued by a German destroyer.

"As soon as they pulled me aboard, a German sailor stood me up on deck and pulled out a big knife. He put it to my throat and I was beginning to wonder why they had bothered to rescue me."

"He cut all my clothes off then threw them over the side. They thought I might have something on me that could blow up the ship."

Mr. Bell said his memories of the sinking were "pretty hazy."

"I just didn't know what hit us," he said. "I was picked up by a German minesweeper and spent the rest of the war in prison camps."

HMCS Athabaskan was sunk about five miles from occupied France on April 29, 1944, with the loss of 128 of her crew of 261.

Mr. Dunnell, who attended the 20th anniversary of the sinking in Edmonton five years ago, said the June date was chosen to make it easier for survivors to attend.

Frank Dempsey of Toronto, one of 85 men captured by the Germans after the destroyer went down, said recently he expected at least 100 survivors to attend the four-day reunion at the Lord Simcoe Hotel.

Full-Time War On Litter Aim in Schools

The hiring of a full-time worker to conduct an anti-litter program in Greater Victoria schools could be a significant breakthrough in the litterbug problem, a young Saanich man said Thursday.

Allard Van Veen of 3217 Wordsworth, an enthusiastic member of Outdoors Unlimited, said the organization had approved such a move and was getting strong support for it.

Here are the developments: ● A program for schools of films, panels, slide talks and organization of anti-litter clubs, held recently for two weeks, would be continued on a full-school-year basis.

● Greater Victoria school board will be asked for a grant of $1,000 and the four municipalities for $750 each toward a total of $5,000 to cover the cost.

REACTIONS

Some of the reactions to the proposal:

W. R. Hunter, principal of Reynolds senior high school: "I think it's an excellent idea to have a full-time worker to continue this program."

Dr. Carron Jameson, chairman of Greater Victoria school board: "I certainly think it's an excellent approach. The school board is interested... trustees get a great many calls on litter."

Peter Bunn, trustee and former chairman of Greater Victoria school board: "I had more calls from the general public about litter in my two years as chairman than on any other problem. I am very much prepared to speak in favor."

INTEREST GROWS

Mr. Van Veen said there seemed to be an increasing awareness of litter in the past two months, and "people seem more willing to do something about it."

"When we organized Outdoor Unlimited 1½ years ago, we thought we were the only ones in Victoria concerned. Now we are getting more reaction, more and more calls. At the last count, our membership was close to 60."

He got strong support from H. I. Banks, principal of Millstream elementary school. "The students received your

Universities and their functions have changed since Plato and his students sat under trees discussing philosophy—so much, in fact, that there no longer seems to be a clear-cut definition of their role in society.

Exams Stolen At Esquimalt

A number of departmental examination papers, including scholarship exams, have been stolen from Esquimalt high school, it was learned Thursday.

Parents have expressed alarm that honest students might be put at a disadvantage in the coming final examinations, and authorities said the case was under intensive investigation.

Greater Victoria school district officials spent 3½ hours Thursday afternoon in a meeting with the department of education's board of examiners, but emerged with no public statement.

DEPARTMENT STATEMENT

A. J. Longmore, superintendent-elect of the district, said any statement would have to come from the department after the investigation.

Clive Kelly, principal of Esquimalt high, earlier said he was unable to make a statement.

Other reliable sources reported that the exam papers stolen included both junior matriculation finals and the provincial scholarship exams.

SERIOUS MATTER

The matter is regarded as serious because of the possibility that the papers will be sold to students by the thief or thieves, creating a disadvantage for honest students.

Mt. Douglas senior high school was also rumored to have lost exam papers, but principal Eric Forster denied the story.

One official said the investigation was close to solving the theft.

City Plebiscite Likely On Sunday Shows

The question of Sunday sport and entertainment will probably be put to a public test at the next civic election as the result of a decision Thursday by city council's finance committee.

The contentious issue was raised by a recently received letter from the Motion Picture Theatre Association which pointed out that council was now authorized by provincial statute to hold such a referendum and that the issue be put to the ratepayers of the city without delay.

Ald. Thomas Christie agreed. "I think the electors should have the opportunity to express their feelings in this matter," the alderman said.

He was supported by Ald. Robert Baird, who said it was a democratic issue to be decided by the people.

City Manager Dennis Young pointed out that no matter what the outcome of the referendum, the decision of the people was not necessarily binding on the city council, which would have to pass the enforcing legislation.

"Some of the men were wounded and the water was very cold and oily. When we were rescued at daybreak, there were only three or four of us left. My lifebelt saved me."

S. T. Dunnell of 508 Selkirk also remembers that night 25 years ago.

"We were screening some mine-layers," said the former chief armorer, "and we got the report there were service craft in the area. We went down and tangled with three German destroyers. One of them was sunk and another was damaged so much it had to be beached."

"We didn't know what hit the Athabaskan. Some thought it was shore batteries, but the Germans told us later it was motor torpedo boats." The memories were aroused this week when survivors discussed a reunion to be held in Toronto from June 27 to 30. Going from Victoria is Joseph Bell of 1537 Belcher, a former ack-ack gunner, who said Wednesday it would be "one of the highlights of my life, to see some of the guys I remember from back there."

"I hear there are about 12 or 13 of us on the Island. Maybe I'm a sentimental old fool, but I'd like it if we could get together some night and just yack it up."

A gunner, he was on the second gun from the front that night, he said. "They hit the gun magazine and this cut the stern off, but the watertight doors held us up. We got ready for a tow by the Maids. Then a German E-boat came in and put a

After a night in the frigid water, Mr. Trickett was rescued by a German destroyer.

"As soon as they pulled me aboard, a German sailor stood me up on deck and pulled out a big knife. He put it to my throat and I was beginning to wonder why they had bothered to rescue me."

"He cut all my clothes off then threw them over the side. They thought I might have something on me that could blow up the ship."

Mr. Bell said his memories of the sinking were "pretty hazy."

"I just didn't know what hit us," he said. "I was picked up by a German minesweeper and spent the rest of the war in prison camps."

HMCS Athabaskan was sunk about five miles from occupied France on April 29, 1944, with the loss of 128 of her crew of 261.

Mr. Dunnell, who attended the 20th anniversary of the sinking in Edmonton five years ago, said the June date was chosen to make it easier for survivors to attend.

Frank Dempsey of Toronto, one of 85 men captured by the Germans after the destroyer went down, said recently he expected at least 100 survivors to attend the four-day reunion at the Lord Simcoe Hotel.

'Regions Seek Efficiency At Low Cost'

DUNCAN — Regional districts don't seek political amalgamation but functional amalgamation within the unit, the vice-chairman of the Cowichan Valley regional board said Wednesday.

Ken McKinnon said it was not the intention of the regional system to replace or usurp the authority of established local governments, but rather to establish close co-operation at the local level to achieve greater efficiency at lower cost.

ELECTED BOARD

Mr. McKinnon said, "Regional districts are still in their infancy and many people are asking what regional districts are, what their objects and aims are, what the benefits are and how are they financed?"

He explained that the provincial government in 1965 divided the province into 28 regional districts, six of which are located on Vancouver Island, each governed by an elected board of directors.

COMMON GROUP

Mr. McKinnon said, "One of the important administrative problems has been the lack of a vehicle to cope with those aspects of growth which were regional in nature yet ignored municipal boundaries and could only be adequately tackled on a scale larger than the existing municipalities."

"Since the introduction of regional districts, it is now possible for the various communities in a region to work together through their representatives on a common board."

Fire Cause Probe Launched

NANAIMO — The cause of a fire which broke out in Nanaimo senior secondary school at about 8:45 p.m. Wednesday would probably remain unknown, several school board officials and staff members agreed Thursday.

Because of cleaning operations and the firefighting the night before, all investigators agreed, said a school board staff member, that any statement referring to the cause would only be speculative because indicative evidence had been destroyed.

Insurance investigators would not have any estimates of damage for several days, the spokesman added.

Golf Clubs Presented

Qualicum Principal Retiring

QUALICUM BEACH — After 33 years as teacher and principal in the Qualicum school district, Len Nicholls, principal of Qualicum Beach senior secondary school, is retiring this summer.

More than 200 former students, friends and teachers went to the auditorium for a farewell party.

A set of golf clubs and bag was presented by an old friend, Ernie Touzeau, who mentioned the many community activities with which Mr. Nicholls had been associated. He said that over the years Mr. Nicholls had undoubtedly done much to mould the lives of many students and to influence the development of the area.

"We have been proud," Mr. Touzeau said, "to have had him here to teach our sons and daughters."

A long-time associate, Mrs. Agnes Creighton, recalled some of the amusing incidents of their early years of teaching, particularly in Parksville.

"You may complain about overcrowding nowadays," she said, "but in those days, we were lucky if we had a classroom."

Once they had to use a furnace room and she remembered classes as large as 48 with six or seven sitting to a table. "And how they would fight," she said.

Mrs. C. R. Skittles, represented the first class to graduate under Mr. Nicholls' guidance and said there had been no exciting parties or even presentation of awards and prizes at her graduation.

But she thought there had been little difference between the hopes and aspirations and academic ability of that small class from those of the 84 students who had graduated this year. Her younger daughter was a member of the recent group. Mr. Nicholls, was educated in Victoria and at UBC and spent two years at both Port Renfrew and Salt Spring Island before moving to Parksville in 1936.

College Admits 100th

NANAIMO — Emily, Diane Allen was the 100th applicant for admission to Malaspina Regional College when it opens on Sept. 8.

She said she felt it would be "really neat" to be a member of the first class of the province's newest college.

Emily, an attractive 5½-foot Cedar resident has not had to repeat a grade. She had been undecided between becoming a teacher or a nurse, having belonged to both future teachers' and future nursing clubs, but teaching won. She will become an elementary teacher.

She said she was surprised when she was told, two days after application, that she was the 100th applicant but an earlier happy surprise had paved the way. She had been presented a Canadian Daughters' League $100 bursary earlier this month.

"I think it will be more interesting to have smaller classes than there are in universities. Besides, the financial advantages of the college are also good," she said.

A college spokesman said there had been so many applicants applying for entry into the college that it was expected the 200th applicant will have filed by next week.

Nothing Works on Shortest Trip

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP) — The first hovercraft in the Canadian North set a record Thursday: the shortest trip by hovercraft in northern Canada. What was supposed to be a 1,000-mile journey from this community down the Mackenzie River to the Arctic Ocean ended seconds after it began. The 10-ton machine, owned by Pacific Hovercraft of Vancouver, lurched off the launching pad and rose stiffly to its four-foot operating height Thursday. Then the gas turbine engine had to be shut down when electrical problems developed and the machine settled back onto the ground. The party chartered an aircraft to fly a new generator and regulator from Yellowknife, 140 miles northeast of here. Battery problems developed. One other snag hit the expedition. A special radio on board

the hovercraft was useless because nobody knew how to tune it. "If we get stuck," quipped Robert Raymond of Victoria, "we'll all get together and yell."

Vote by Rhodesians Chops British Link

Means Queried For Moving Poisonous Gas

OTTAWA (CP) — A public outcry in the United States over the movement of poisonous gases prompted Prime Minister Trudeau to demand how such war materials are transported in Canada.

The precise answer given by the prime minister by the defence department has not been disclosed.

However, department sources say that when toxic gases are shipped from one point to another in Canada, service rather than civilian transport is used. NO FLIGHTS The defence research board operates two chemical-biological laboratories, one at Shirley Bay near Ottawa and the other at Suffield, Alta. Meanwhile, it has been denied officially here that the U.S. flies materials across Canadian territory for use at biological warfare test centres in Alaska and Greenland. David Lewis, deputy NDP leader, asked a series of questions on this subject Wednesday in the Commons. Lewis used the term "germs and other materials."

He was told by Treasury Board President C. M. Drury, acting as external affairs minister in the absence of Mitchell Sharp, that Canada-U.S. arrangements call for prior consultation before any such flights are made.

And, Drury added, "no permission for such flights has been sought."

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Prime Minister Ian Smith won a landslide referendum victory Friday as Rhodesia's white-dominated electorate overwhelmingly approved a new apartheid-style constitution and the declaration of a republic.

With nearly all the votes counted, the government had won a resounding 73 per cent yes vote for its white-supremacist constitution and an even more impressive 82 per cent "yes" for plans to declare a republic.

"This is a very happy result," Smith said. "I wanted a good strong yes vote to send a firm, positive message out to the rest of the world."

OFFICIALS LEAVING?

The result seemed to ensure an imminent final parting between Rhodesia and Britain, from which Rhodesia declared its independence Nov. 11, 1965. After the white minority would not agree with Britain on plans for the political future of the Africans.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his ministers have said they consider the referendum and its proposals to be just as illegal as the declaration of independence. External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Friday night called the declaration of a republic invalid.

OFFICIALS LEAVING

Political sources in Salisbury speculated that Britain would react to the vote by withdrawing the head of its mission, Peter Carter, and retiring Gov.-Gen. Sir Humphrey Gibbs, the official symbol of the British crown.

Smith has scheduled a news conference for today, when he is expected to announce plans to put into effect the constitution, which provides that the African majority will never rule the country.

The population of the country is made up of 4,000,000 black Africans and 230,000 whites.

HEAVY VOTE

The voter turnout Friday appeared high. From the time the polls opened there were large lineups at polling stations.

About 81,600 white and 5,500 privileged blacks were eligible to cast ballots and as returns appeared from urban and remote constituencies, every result was the same: a solid "yes."

The government, now that the constitution is approved, also proposes to divide all land in Rhodesia—half for the whites and half for the Africans.

But a leading council member chief, Kayisa Nwini, in a statement said the majority of the 25 council members were totally opposed to the constitution.

Peking Parley 'Progressing'

OTTAWA (CP) — Talks between Canada and Communist China on the question of diplomatic recognition "have progressed on substantive issues in a deliberate and orderly way," External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Friday.

The minister, who earlier in the day returned from a Scandinavian tour including a visit to Stockholm where the talks are being held—said the question of Nationalist China is "one of the most important being discussed."

AMBIGUOUS

But he refused to give any details during a news conference. If the talks are to be successful, he said, "they must be secret."

He said that until the present government took the initiative in seeking diplomatic recognition of the Peking regime, "Canada's position was a bit ambiguous so far as its one-China policy is concerned."

But he said it is clear now, Canada recognizes only one government of China, and is seeking to recognize the Communist regime as that government.

If the current negotiations don't succeed, he was asked, would Canada then continue to recognize the Nationalist Regime as the government of China?

Sharp said he is confident the talks will be successful. If they aren't, the situation would be considered at that time. He made it clear that Canada would support the seating of Communist China in the United Nations should the current talks be successful. "Our attitude toward seating in the UN would have to be consistent."

Canada had no plans to recognize other Communist regimes which are not now recognized—such as North Korea and North Vietnam.

Spanish Bases Kept By U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring that "the era of foreign military bases has ended," Spain agreed Friday to a 15-month extension under which the United States maintains military bases in Spain. In exchange, Spain will receive $50,000,000 worth of military equipment from the United States and a $35,000,000 loan.

But Spanish disengagement with the agreement was evident in a statement issued by Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella. He said the bases would become "exclusively Spanish" at the end of a phasing-out period.

DISENCHANTED

Spain originally sought in long negotiations $1 billion from the United States in exchange for a five-year renewal of the agreement.

Sen. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, expressed his own disenchantment with the agreement. "I feel bound to oppose it," he said. "I asked the secretary of state, both in person and in writing, to put the agreement in the form of a treaty or a convention which could be studied and voted on by the Senate. He refused to accept the suggestion," Fulbright said.

ERA ENDED

For his part, Castiella declared: "The people of Spain are aware of a world phenomenon which is indisputable: the era of foreign military bases has ended."

"Nations are every day less willing to harbor the sort of establishment and demand, instead, more rational systems of co-operation."

QUEBEC LEADER SOUGHT

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, fighting to retain leadership of the ruling Union Nationale party, said Friday night he is prepared to propose a presidential system of government for Quebec by way of a referendum.

The premier made the pledge in his address to the party's leadership convention, which will elect a permanent successor tonight to the late premier Daniel Johnson.

Bertrand said: "We will establish the presidential system if the people want it. As far as I'm concerned I am ready to propose it in a referendum."

Premier Bertrand, elected interim party leader by the legislature caucus following Johnson's death last September, already has said referendum legislation will be brought before the national assembly this fall.

He did not explain how a presidential system would operate in the Canadian context.

Theme of his speech was "I speak to you tonight of the new Quebec." The presidential system was the key "new" element.

He said the new system would come after having inherited over the years parliamentary systems and structures which were imported to suit the needs of various conquerors of times past.

"We are finally going to give ourselves a system designed to meet our needs, a system not only to ensure our survival or our existence but to ensure our development."

A big majority of the 55-man party caucus then rushed up to the podium to surround the premier.

Five of the 10 brass bands in the Coliseum blared away noisily.

Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal, last of the three candidates and a major challenger to Bertrand's leadership, received a standing ovation.

Hippie Gets Bubonic Plague

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (Reuters) — A resident of a hippie community 20 miles north of here is suffering from bubonic plague, county health authorities confirmed Friday following medical tests.

Keith Pleasanton, 18, has been in Bernalillo County medical centre since Sunday. He is in fair condition.

The community of about 80 persons has been placed under an informal quarantine. Doctors and health personnel are in the area.

B.C. Tel Negotiations Going Around Clock

VANCOUVER (CP) — Union and management officials agreed Friday to begin round-the-clock negotiations to avert a strike at British Columbia Telephone Co.

The two sides agreed to resume bargaining after D. M. Carter, personnel director for B.C. Tel, sent a letter to the union Thursday which said it was "in the public interest that a contract be concluded."

About 6,000 plant, traffic and clerical employees of B.C. Tel have completed a strike vote but no result has been announced.

Meanwhile, another source of food supply in Vancouver closed

Friday. Locked out were 100 employees at the Malkin's division of Westfair Foods, a major wholesale firm.

E. R. O'Neill, general manager of Malkin's, said he did not believe the retail outlets served by the company would have to close. He said other wholesale firms would look after them "to the best of their ability."

Malkin's supplies independent stores not involved in a wages dispute that closed 103 Vancouver-area supermarkets May 24.

That dispute involves members of the meat cutters' union and the store clerks' union, both seeking shorter hours and higher wages. (See also Page 36.)

Fixed Income, Spiralling Costs

Pensions Underline Problem

By MARJORIE NICHOLS
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The plight of the pensioner points up the crisis facing thousands of Canadians who are trying to live on a fixed wage in the midst of spiralling inflation. A group of old-age pensioners told Health Minister Munro last week that many older people across the country are being forced to eat dog food to make ends meet.

In the case of the civil service pensioner, it also points up the frustrations and confusion of trying to understand not only the federal government's political motives, but its illusory book-keeping methods as well.

According to government bookkeepers, civil servants now have a balance of almost three billion dollars in their superannuation, or pension account.

In theory there is enough money to give each of the country's 50,000 retired civil servants, widows and orphans a $2,000 lump-sum bonus out of the interest earned by the account last year alone.

In fact, however, the government does not have three billion dollars stashed away in a bank account, and the outlook for even a modest pension increase in the near future is not bright.

Unlike most private enterprises, the government does not physically take its employees' contributions and invest them. It merely keeps a running tab of the amount paid, on paper, to the book-keeping account by employee and employer.

At present civil servants pay six and a half per cent of their salary into this account. This amount is matched, on paper, by the government, and the account, in theory, collects interest at the rate of four per cent per annum.

The account is, in other words, merely an exercise in book-keeping, a meticulous record of paper transactions. Each year, the government still has to budget for the money needed to pay the civil servants their pensions.

Though the government last year paid out more than $84,000,000 in superannuation payments, the superannuation account grew by almost $300,000,000 through addition of interest and employee and employer contributions.

Most of the civil service pensioners who have been lobbying unsuccessfully for several years for a pay

Time Now Running Out For Swim Class Signup

Time is running out for those wanting to take advantage of the Colonist's free swimming lessons.

Deadline for applications is 5 p.m. Wednesday. Coupons, such as that appearing on Page 2, must be filled out, signed by a parent, and in the Colonist offices by that time.

The classes, limited again to children from seven to 14 years of age, will be held for seven weeks beginning July 2 at Hamsterly Beach at Elk Lake. They will be under the direction of chief instructor Margie Naismith.

Those requiring transportation will be able to board a bus in front of the old North Ward school grounds next to the Colonist, 2631 Douglas. Tickets are $2.75 and must be picked up at the Colonist.

United Appeal's Target $694,000 This Year

By DON GAIN

The United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal target for this year, $694,000, was announced Friday at a noon meeting of the board of directors of the Community Chest of Greater Victoria.

The target was decided after the budget committee spent hours going over budgets submitted by the 23

Community Chest member agencies and the Red Cross, L. J. Glassford, president of the chest, said after the meeting.

Pruned from the budgets was $150,000, Mr. Glassford said.

"The agencies won't be able to accomplish as much as they had hoped, but we have pared their budgets to the bone," he added.

"We now are hoping that the citizens of Greater Victoria will come forward and contribute to those less fortunate than themselves," he said.

This year's target is up six per cent over last year's goal of $655,000. Because the 1968 target was not met, this year's represents an increase of 11 per cent over the actual amount raised last year.

Campaign chairman Peter Darling said six agencies are within $400 of their last year's budgets and one agency is getting less.

"The others are up in varying amounts. The handicapped children's clinic budget is up, due to its new facilities at Gordon Head," Mr. Darling said he planned a campaign which will be "fresh and fast," one designed to keep up the enthusiasm of the canvassers as well as the public.

Last year's campaign started in June and ran until December.

"We will concentrate on September and October," he said, "and hope to get it over with as quickly as possible." Mr. Darling announced the appointment of Mrs. Bonner Aust as chairman of a full-time public information committee.

Mrs. Aust was chairman of the residential campaign last year. Taking over in that capacity is Mrs. S. J. Cunliffe.

Recruitment of chairmen in the business community is going very favorably, Mr. Darling said.

"We are hoping" that Greater Victorians will follow the fair-share way of contributing this year. It amounts to a contribution of one hour's pay per month. With professional people, a fair share is one per cent of salary.

He said that, even though this year's target is $74,000 above what was raised last year, fair-share contributions would provide for the Community Chest three times what is needed, if everybody gave in that way.

Chest agencies spend $3 in Greater Victoria for each $1 raised by the United Appeal fund drive, he said, because the agencies also receive substantial grants from governments, fees, membership dues and special bequests.

Summer: Mid Or Beginning?

By NANCY BROWN

There'll be a chill in the air over Vancouver Island this morning as the days start to shorten following midsummer, which arrived at precisely 6:55 a.m. today.

North Americans will probably insist that June 21 is the first day of summer, but the English immigrant believes once the longest day has passed so has midsummer.

Even the weather office is offering collaboration with a weather forecast of generally cloudy conditions this morning.

However, Islanders will be able to make the most of the time before fall by heading for the beaches in the afternoon, as clouds are expected to clear by midday.

In Victoria winds will continue strong, emphasizing the end of last week's scorching heat when a trough brought the hot dry weather straight up from Nevada.

From Wednesday until this morning the sun has risen at 5:11 a.m., setting at 9:19 p.m. On Sunday the sunlight hours will be one minute shorter with the sun rising at 5:12 a.m.

Car Testing Extension Decided on Monday

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson says a decision will be made Monday on whether to extend the deadline for compulsory motor vehicle testing in Greater Victoria.

The attorney-general said late Friday he had received no recommendation on whether the July 1 deadline established several months ago should remain in effect or whether a further extension was needed. The government's compulsory motor vehicle testing program, which is to be extended later throughout B.C., was originally intended to have come into effect here after an experimental period last Jan. 1. It was postponed because the volume of vehicles could not be handled in the time allotted.

If the July 1 deadline is confirmed Monday it will mean all vehicles and trailers without valid stickers are liable to a $10 minimum penalty.

B.C. Servants Excluded In Rights Act

By DIANE JANOWSKI

A government official agreed Friday with a claim B.C. government employees have been making for several years.

"There seem to be two kinds of citizens here," said Jack Sherlock, director of the B.C. Human Rights Commission.

The Human Rights Act, which came into effect here Monday, does not apply to civil servants.

"SECOND-CLASS" "Unless specifically stated, servants of the Crown are not included," he said.

"If this is true," a union official said, "it only proves what we have been saying for years — civil servants are second-class citizens in the eyes of the government."

Norman Thorner, business agent for the marine branch of the B.C. government, added "This is a direct slap in the face for government employees."

TAXPAYERS "Are they not citizens of B.C.? Are they not taxpayers?" He asked why government employees should be excluded from the "good life."

"We don't like this second-class status," he said.

Attorney-general Leslie Peterson said it was true the civil servants were not covered by the act, and said there will be no amendment to correct this.

NO DISCRIMINATION "There's no need for that," he said. "There will be no discrimination of that sort as long as I'm here."

The attorney-general said there have been no instances of discrimination in government hiring.

"There are people of all races and creeds working in the civil service. The government will not tolerate discrimination."

ANOTHER LOOK "To date there have been no differences of opinion with the government over this," said Mr. Thorner, "but if the Human Rights Act excludes any segment of the population of B.C., then there is something wrong with it and we'd better take another look at it."

Mr. Sherlock said it would seem the government is free to discriminate in any way it might choose.

Attorney-General Peterson said the B.C. ferries requirement that employees must be Canadian citizens or British subjects was not discriminatory because citizenship was a common requirement for government personnel.

PAPERS WARNED "You have to be a Canadian citizen to be a member of Parliament," he said.

He warned newspapers to watch for discriminatory classified ads.

"We're not looking to prosecute," he said. "It's up to the news media to do a little policing on their own."

"We have no intention of breaking the law," said Hector Alexander, advertising director of Victoria Press, "but we have no way of telling if restrictive clauses in the ads are actually conditions of employment."

ANSWER 'NO' When asked if his department would be issuing specific directives to help people enforce the Act, the attorney-general said: "The answer is no."

Commission director Sherlock said the Commission's main purpose was to educate people to the Act rather than prosecute.

A spokesman for the Civil Service Commission, hiring agent for the B.C. government, admitted Friday the Commission was guided by an unofficial rule saying galley positions on the B.C. ferries go to Chinese Canadian applicants.

"I suppose you could say there is an unwritten rule saying Chinese work in the galleys," said A. G. Richardson, chief personnel officer.

"A lot of Chinese are qualified for this work and it has been the practice to employ them. It's an area where the Chinese population can be employed."

ANY MAY APPLY Mr. Richardson noted that any qualified person may apply for the positions and said: "I think there's the odd one (non-Chinese-Canadian) working here and there in the galleys."

He admitted, however, that such persons were really busboys or stewards who had been called into temporarily replace an absent galley crew member.

The Human Rights Commission will meet in the Victoria Law Courts Aug. 19 to consider complaints of citizens under the newly-proclaimed law.

PART OF SERIES

The hearings are part of a series to be held in the months of July and August, beginning in Kelowna, July 22, moving to Creston July 24, and Prince George, Aug. 5.

The Human Rights Commission is composed of the same members as the industrial relations board which on those dates will hear submissions regarding the revision of minimum wage orders.

Both the commission and the board are headed by Deputy Labor Minister William Sands.

Commission Blamed For Ministrike Lag

By DON COLLINS

Organized labor in Victoria has accused the B.C. Mediation Commission of inaction in the city's seven-month-old ministrike and may soon ask Labor Minister Peterson to step into the picture.

Jack Groves, president of the 13,000-member Victoria Labor Council has been meeting behind the scenes with other union officials in an attempt to find a solution for the dispute which began last Nov. 27 at Hy Fidelity Photos, 750 Discovery.

STRATEGY MEETINGS The strike, for a first contract between the company and Teamsters Union, involves eight workers. It followed what is believed to have been the smallest government-supervised strike vote in B.C. Only three ballots were cast.

After Friday's strategy meetings Mr. Groves said: "We are seriously considering approaching Peterson." (Labor Minister Leslie Peterson.)

"The feeling is that the minister of labor should be concerning himself with this strike which has been allowed to go on for seven months."

MEDIATION OFFICER He said it was obvious the mediation commission wasn't doing what it should be doing to bring about settlement.

Mr. Groves said a mediation officer had entered the picture last January at the request of the Teamsters after being assured that the union was ready to sit down and negotiate at any time.

Fire Too Close For Comfort

Residents along Mayfair Drive lived through some tense moments Friday afternoon as a grass fire rampaged across six acres on the west side of Mount Tolmie and came dangerously close to their homes.

Winds of up to 30 miles an hour fanned the flames and huge billows of smoke swirled skyward. The smoke hampered Spanish firemen who fought the blaze for more than an hour before bringing it under control.

Four fire trucks attended in an effort to confine the blaze to the grass area, but in spite of the firemen's efforts, the flames came to within 20 feet of the property of Donald Robbins of 3490 Mayfair Drive.

"It was a little too close for comfort," said Mr. Robbins casting a weary look at the furniture assembled on his front lawn.

"We had a whole bunch of kids help us carry the furniture out. They were just great, and it certainly looked like our house would go up in flames."

All shrubs, flowers and numerous fruit trees in his back yard were destroyed by the fire.

"But I guess we have to be grateful. At least we were able to keep our house," he said.

Doug Broadland, 15, of 3556 Richmond was busy extinguishing smoldering grass patches with his own equipment.

"I'm glad I could help a bit," he said.

Terrified Boy, 15, Gets Chance

By CLEMENT CHAPPEL

A 15-year-old boy who spent a week in Colquitz jail awaiting sentence after being convicted of breaking and entering, told Central Magistrate's Court Friday that he kept to his cell in fear of homosexual inmates.

The boy, described by Magistrate William Ostler as a "sophisticated and experienced criminal" with a long record in juvenile court, was given his first and last chance in adult court — a suspended sentence of two years for four counts of breaking and entering and theft.

"LOVE LETTER" The boy took the witness stand before being sentenced and described his fears of being sexually assaulted by inmates of Colquitz jail, and read a love letter written to him by one of the inmates.

He said he stayed as much as possible in his cell because "if they jumped me and tried anything I wouldn't have had a chance."

Magistrate Ostler met with counsel in his chambers and then the boy was sent into the witness box to give evidence. He appeared to be crying during part of his testimony.

The boy said there was one man in the jail who more or less protected him from the "advances" of homosexuals when he could.

He said he got two pork chops at his first meal in jail, and the inmates had told him this was arranged by "mother." He then began to receive letters and chocolates bars and was continually invited out into the jail yard.

There was a "small Frenchman" who often spoke to him in French, but the boy's friend refused to translate the comments. Asked by counsel what he was afraid of, the boy said "I guess you can call it sexual attack."

COULDN'T SEE Under cross-examination, the boy said the guard, who watched over four floors, was stationed "around the corner" and could not see what took place in the cells.

The boy told court he wrote a request to see the probation officer but heard nothing further.

Questioned by Magistrate Ostler, the boy said he did not trust the guards because they "savored" as much as the inmates.

"They saw it happen anyhow. I don't see how they could miss it."

Both Magistrate Ostler and prosecutor John Macintyre said they could not be certain whether the boy was telling the truth, because of a "history of lying."

The probation officer's report was "very negative," said Mr. Macintyre.

"HE LIES" "We know he lies," and this could change some of the weight given to his testimony about the jail experience, but "I suppose it's notorious that this sort of thing goes on in any institution," Mr. Macintyre said.

However, "on the face of it, he lies and cheats and disregards other people's property. Now, in the eleventh hour, he supposedly repents..."

Magistrate Ostler said he has enough confidence in penal institutions to know that they would do "everything possible" to avoid allowing a boy to become involved in such behavior, but said he would give the boy "one chance" in adult court.

"You must understand it is your last chance... If you come back before me you can expect nothing but prison."

Globe-Circling Liner Here Today

The globe-circling luxury ship SS President Roosevelt will steam into Victoria shortly after noon today to inaugurate cruise service to the city by American President Lines.

The 622-foot liner will berth at Ogden Point with 400 passengers and more than 300 crew on her way back in San Francisco from a 13-day Alaska cruise.

This is the first time one of the big APL passenger liners has visited Canadian waters.

The Roosevelt was built in 1944 as a troop transport, the USS General W. P. Richardson. In 1949 she was modified to carry military dependents and renamed USS LaGuardia. In 1956 she was converted for civilian use by the Malson Lines and renamed Leisler. American President Lines bought her in 1960 and she took her present name.

The ship will be greeted by a 130-foot banner trailing from a plane flying over the port and she will be escorted past the breakwater by a fireboat.

The dockside welcome will get underway about 1 p.m., with the Esquimalt Girls Thunderbird Drum Corps and the Jerry Gosley Smile Show providing entertainment.

Passengers will have the afternoon for shopping and sightseeing. The ship sails at 8 p.m. for her home port. Scottish singer Jock Dunbar will be there, accompanied by one or two pipers, to extend a musical goodbye.

The 18,000-ton liner will visit Victoria three more times this year and will initiate B.C.-Orient cruises with her July 5 sailing from Vancouver and her July 6 sailing from here.

Next winter and spring her owners plan a variety of cruise combinations from here to the Orient, some timed to take advantage of Japan's Expo 70 in Osaka.
